

Using arrows (please use one long, single arrow for each current), show the location and direction of a current and then write the name of that current near the arrow. There are 28 major currents shown in your text (some of them have the same name and are distinguished from each other by placing the name of the ocean they are in before their name). It is not necessary to show convergences or divergences. I will add a few currents to this map the next time we meet, so don't write other things in the ocean areas that are unmarked.
