As follows from our previous work on the subject, <https://kvisit.com/S-sH3Aw>, the main reason for the Covid-19 is suggested to be the present general ideological crisis, that has prevented civilization from functioning as a whole system, turning it instead into a global chaos. The main contributors to the crisis seem to be Western Europe, Russia, the USA and Israel. To start settling the crisis, we recommend to organize a UN conference aimed at setting up a new international center to start and coordinate the global ideological reform. Bellow we elaborate the above message.

The Covid-19 seems to be a new form of the world war and should be treated respectively: the old and the weak to be sheltered, the young and the strong to be in the battle field. It is a disease of civilization as a system, now disorganized and turned into an uncontrollable chaos. It can hardly be cured by a vaccine, only by a radical reform of society. We, New Marxists of Europe, know how to do that, but at present we do not have the proper conditions for the job. So it is the right time UNESCO created a new institute under our direction to start reforming modern society and organizing civilization as a properly functioning system.

Although the pandemic is dangerous for older people (80+), especially for those with some serious diseases, it is much more safe for healthy people and almost absolutely safe for the young. That means that, formally speaking, the Covid-19 improves and rejuvenates society. It is like a wolf pack necessary for the herd of reindeers to be healthy. So the Covid-19 seems to be a heavenly measure created to improve the present fundamentally sick human society.

In the above context, the quarantine measures, taken everywhere to protect people, look somewhat counterproductive, because they prevent the Corona-virus from doing its socially useful job and thus undermine civil society as a whole, making it less immune to this and similar diseases. It does not mean that quarantine measures are not necessary sometimes, but, instead of the panic-like total quarantine, it is only the most vulnerable people that should be isolated for the risky time. The Covid-19 seems to signal an urgent necessity for a radical reform of modern society; it is like an ultimatum to civilization: organize itself or die.

In this connection we recommend the following minimal measures to protect from the Covid-19:

- (1) organize UNESCO scientific conferences in theoretical physics, theory of science, politics, and economics, aimed, first of all, at discussing our fundamental research works in those fields (see our site; <https://kvisit.com/S-sH3Aw>);
- (2) reform UNESCO thoroughly, with its main task being the settling of the above general ideological crisis;
- (3) start reforming modern religion;
- (4) reform accordingly the present system of managing international relations.
