

40 ***

Chicago Daily Tribune

MONDAY, JULY 7, 1947

Planes Go Up to Look for "Flying Saucers"—Returning July 4 Vacationists Jam Highways

A flyer fits a movie camera into a P-51 fighter plane at Portland, Ore., before taking off in hope of getting pictures of flying saucers in Oregon area. (Story on page 12)

A bear pauses to rest on the highway and causes a traffic jam in Yellowstone park in Wyoming. This picture was taken on the Grand Loop road between the communities of Lower Falls Junction and Canyon Junction.

Carl E. J. Smith, air line pilot, holds a dinner plate at Chicago airport in show Stewardess Toni Carter how flying disks appeared to him. Smith and his crew reported seeing the disks on Idaho-Oregon flight. (Story on page 8)

An albino bird on clothes line in yard at 6048 N. Keeler av. Quinlan as to its species differed. (Story on page 2)

Wayne Jackson, 12, of East Fishkill, N. Y., watches pet woodchuck eat ice cream cone.

Looking north in Shokin rd. (U. S. 41) from Lincoln av. late yesterday as automobiles of Chicagoans returning from Fourth of July week-end trips caused traffic jam. Some were typical of all main highways. (Story on page 29)

Three damaged houses at Quincy, Mass., yesterday after being hit by Hell Diver navy bomber. Crash killed pilot and injured passenger. Woman fleeing burning home at night was slightly burned. (Story on page 1)