
Flying Disc

Investigators Die In Crash

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2. (U.P.)
Two fliers who were killed yesterday in a crash in Washington were intelligence officers returning here after talking with Kenneth Arnold, Boise pilot who first reported seeing the flying discs, Brig. Gen. Ned Schramm, fourth air force chief of staff, said today.

Schramm said it was his understanding that the men were not bringing anything back with them in their B-25 bomber which crashed near Kelso, Wash.

An anonymous caller notified the United Press at Tacoma, Wash., that closely guarded fragments of a flying disc had been loaded aboard the plane before it took off from McChord Field, Wash., for Hamilton Field, Calif.

Flying Disc Investigators Die in Crash at Kelso. Nevada State Journal (Reno NV), 3 Aug 1947.

Flying Disc Investigators Die in Crash at Kelso. Nevada State Journal (Reno NV), 3 Aug 1947, page 1.

Clipped By:

leaconner

Sat, Jul 26, 2014