Dallas Police Department Code of Conduct

Chapter IV

Revised 10/13/2020

PROFESSIONAL CONDUCT AND PERSONAL BEARING

- 4.1 Dereliction of duty on the part of any employee, detrimental to the proper performance of the functions of the Department, is cause for corrective action. The following subsections constitute dereliction of duty.
- A Failure of a supervisor or commander to immediately take action when a violation of rules or regulations comes to their attention, regardless of the supervisor's or violator's assignment or rank within the Department.
 - B Failure to deliver to the official departmental custodian any property found by, confiscated by, or relinquished to officers of this Department without undue delay and, in any event, before their tour of duty is ended.
 - C Failure to place evidence in its officially designated place for preservation and storage.
 - D Failure to take appropriate police action to aid a fellow peace officer exposed to danger or in a situation where danger might be impending.
 - E Cowardice or failures to perform police duties because of danger.
 - F Any action that places any person in greater danger than is necessary for the proper performance of the employee's duties.
 - G To offer, agree to accept/deliver, or solicit a bribe. (A bribe shall be defined as a gift, emolument, money, thing of value, testimonial, appointment or personal advantage, or the promise or solicitation of same for the purpose of obtaining special privileges or personal gain by the donor or other person.)
 - H For the purpose of protecting life and property, officers will always be considered on duty while in the City of Dallas and shall be prepared to act to the extent possible any time circumstances indicate their services are required.
- The above enforcement action will not include:
- 1 Enforcement of laws of a Class C Misdemeanor nature or traffic enforcement when out of uniform and off-duty unless in an off-duty employment capacity and with prior supervisory permission.
 - 2 Enforcement responsibilities beyond the ability of the officer when he is not armed. (Appropriate action in such cases may include calling 911.)
- 4.2 No employee shall be convicted of, nor commit, any act or omission which is defined as a criminal act.
- 4.3 No employee shall engage in any conduct which adversely affects the morale or efficiency of the Department or which has a tendency to adversely affect, lower or destroy public respect and confidence in the Department or officer.
- 4.4 No employee, when acting outside the course and scope of their duties, shall precipitate, cause, or escalate a disturbance or police incident to their discredit.
- 4.5 No employee shall fail or deliberately refuse to obey a lawful order given by a supervisory member including any order relayed from a superior by an employee of same or lesser rank.
- 4.6 Employees shall treat supervisory members, subordinates, and associates with respect. They shall be courteous and civil at all times in their relationships with one another.
- 4.7 Employees shall not publicly criticize or ridicule the Department, its policies, or other employees by talking, writing, or expressing in a manner which:
- A Is defamatory.
 - B Is obscene.
 - C Is unlawful; or
 - D Impairs the operation of the Department by interfering with its efficiency, by interfering with the ability of supervisors to maintain discipline, or by exhibiting a reckless disregard for the truth.
- 4.8 No employee shall be under the influence of drugs or be a user of drugs when such drugs are not prescribed by a physician or dentist or to take drugs in a manner not prescribed by a physician or dentist.

Trump-backed GOP candidate for Texas House charged with impersonating a public servant

Update: Revised at 6 p.m. to include comment from Paul Chabot.

Frederick Frazier, the Republican candidate for Texas House District 61, has been charged with impersonating a public servant, a third-degree felony, after an investigation over accusations of sign-stealing during his campaign.

A Collin County grand jury handed up its indictment of Frazier, a Dallas police officer, on Thursday. Frazier turned himself in to the Richardson police department Friday, according to his lawyer, Robert Rogers.

225111 This accusation that a public servant impersonated another public servant with less power and responsibilities defies logic and will not hold up in court," Rogers said.

The indictment comes as the result of an investigation by the state Department of Public Safety. The agency could not immediately be reached for comment.

WFAA-TV (Channel 8) reported that Frazier's opponent in the GOP runoff, Paul Chabot, reported to McKinney police a December incident in which some of his campaign signs were removed from outside a Walmart.

Chabot told the station that the store notified him that someone who said they were a McKinney code compliance officer asked the store to tell Chabot that his signs were not in compliance. A city manager later told him that no code compliance officer had been to the store, however.

One of his signs was taken from the area near the store days later, WFAA reported.

Dallas police said the department was notified of the indictment Friday and placed Frazier on administrative leave.

Frazier has been a law enforcement officer 27 years, Rogers said. He received an endorsement from former President Donald Trump in February and emerged from the primary victorious over two other candidates.

In fast-growing Collin County, three Republicans vie for new House District 61 seat

Frazier's campaign said in a written statement that Chabot was trying to overturn the results of the runoff election, which Frazier won decisively.

"Frederick Frazier is looking forward to having the opportunity to defend himself in court, where we are confident that jurors will see through Chabot's lies in the same way that voters have five times before," the campaign said.

Chabot wrote in a Facebook post that Frazier had run "one of the most dishonest campaigns I have ever seen."

"Those who wear the badge must be held to a higher standard, and, regardless of the outcome of the future criminal trial, a lot has already been learned," he wrote. "Character counts — and it's critical in our law enforcement profession, let alone that of an elected official."

Frazier served on the McKinney City Council before stepping down to run for state representative. He is set to face businesswoman Sheena King in November's election.

The newly formed House District 61 includes some of Collin County's fastest-growing cities.

A Texas House candidate and police officer backed by former President Donald Trump and top Texas Republicans has been indicted on a charge of impersonating a public servant, according to authorities.

Dallas police said Friday that Frederick Frazier was placed on administrative leave after the department was notified that a Collin County grand jury indicted him. Impersonating a public servant is a third-degree felony.

Frazier turned himself in to the Richardson jail Friday and posted bond, said Teddy Yoshida, a spokesperson for the Richardson Police Department.

It is unclear what the specific allegations against Frazier are, and a spokesperson for the Collin County district attorney's office was not immediately available for comment.

Responding to the indictment, Frazier's campaign blamed his Republican primary runoff opponent, Paul Chabot, who had suggested Frazier posed as a city code compliance officer to get Chabot's campaign signs taken down at a Walmart. In a statement, Frazier's campaign said Chabot, who has run for office multiple times before, is "trying to overturn the results of that election by bringing up trumped complaints to law enforcement and testifying before a grand jury."

"Frederick Frazier is looking forward to having the opportunity to defend himself in court, where we are confident jurors will see through Chabot's lies in the same way that voters have five times before," the statement said.

John Thomas, Chabot's consultant, issued a statement on Frazier's indictment:

"An independent grand jury was empaneled and determined that Mr. Frazier committed multiple felonies. In fact, it was the Rangers and the McKinney PD who uncovered the felonies. Frazier's lying and deceit knows no limits. He committed crimes and refuses to fess up. He is a disgrace to himself and to those who dawn a badge in law enforcement. Paul Chabot demands Frazier have one shred of decency and immediately drop out of the race as it's crucial that both a Republican and candidate with integrity represent the people of the 61st district."

Frazier easily won the Republican primary runoff last month for House District 61, an open seat in Collin County that leans Republican. A well-known advocate for law enforcement in Austin, Frazier had the backing of Trump, Gov. Greg Abbott, Lt. Gov. Dan Patrick and state House Speaker Dade Phelan. The Democratic nominee in the race is Sheena King.

During the runoff, Chabot spoke out about the alleged theft of dozens of his campaign signs. In one incident, Chabot said a Walmart store manager told him someone claiming to work for city code compliance came in and told the store to take down Chabot's signs because they were illegally placed. Chabot said he reported that to the police.

The Texas Rangers ultimately looked into his claims. Chabot later obtained a report from the Rangers through a public records request that said the agency investigated Frazier in February for "alleged criminal violations ... of Impersonating a Public Servant and potentially related Theft."

The Texas Tribune thanks its sponsors. Become one.

At the time, Frazier's campaign consultant, Craig Murphy, said his candidate denied any wrongdoing and called Chabot's claims "frivolous."

Texas Scorecard and Steven Monacelli, a freelance journalist who extensively covered the campaign sign controversy for Rolling Stone, were among the first to report Friday that Frazier had been indicted.
