LONDON LIGHTS DIM AS GAS WORKERS STRIKE

London (AP)—A gas workers strike brought a partial blackout back to London last night.

Street lights failed to come on along 1,400 miles of streets in an area where 6,000,000 persons live. Gas pressure ran low in thousands of homes.

Company officials said 20,000 industrial concerns would be affected by the gas shortage, including newspaper plants which use gas to heat type metal. Emergency techniques developed in the war were called into use.

Two thousand maintenance workers have been on strike four days against the Gas Light and Coke Co. seeking wage increases averaging fourpence (4 cents) an hour. Company foremen have voted to join the walkout this week.

OPA Pledges Aid To Spur Production

Washington (AP)—Administrator Paul Porter yesterday promised business and industry full help from OPA in loosening the government's wartime grip on prices through the newly-created decontrol board.

The board, product of a compromise between administration demands for continued strong powers over prices to battle inflation and congressional effort to drop most controls at once, takes up its first tasks today.

Porter "rigorously denied" that OPA will require "industry to jump through hoops of red tape" in order to win price increases held to be necessary for production.

If anybody has to jump through hoops it is because Congress wrote the law that way, Porter indicated in a lengthy written explanation of how OPA expects to administer its revived powers.

"If production is slowed up, it will certainly not be the fault of the OPA," Porter declared. "We will grant all price increases called for by the law. We will withhold those which cannot be clearly justified under the standards set up according to law."

The first job of the three-member decontrol board, which has final say-so over removal or application of price ceilings, is a decision on automatic restoration of price ceilings on a long list of food and feed products. These include meats, milk, butter, grains, cottonseed and soybeans.

Even after Congress agreed to revival of price controls, it insisted that these major commodities be freed from ceilings until Aug. 21, with the new board to decide before then whether they should remain free.

Yast of the food and feed products included in the group have advanced sharply over the price ceilings that existed June 30, when OPA expired.

As a yardstick for the new board, Congress directed controls should not return unless prices had gone up "unreasonably." The product is in "short supply" and can be regulated, and controls are in "the public interest."

The initial hearing today will deal with grains, with twenty witnesses appearing under a split-second time schedule that allows a maximum of thirty minutes oral testimony and with most witnesses confined to ten or 15 minutes.

The question of meat controls will come up tomorrow with 23 witnesses to be heard.

U. S. AND BRITAIN URGING LIBERATED POLES TO GO HOME

Strange "Educational" Campaign Directed at Refugees in Germany

Washington, (AP)—Born out of Europe's confusion, a strange "educational" campaign has been ordered by the United States and British governments to try to persuade half a million or so bewildered and unhappy Poles in western Germany to go home.

The intensified drive is being launched now, diplomatic authorities disclosed yesterday, because of the approaching end of UNRRA and the heavy costs which maintenance of displaced persons in Germany imposes on American and British taxpayers—considerably more than $100,000,000 a year.

At war's end, there were many more Poles in Germany than now, transported there for slave labor. By last November all but the estimated half million—some authorities say more nearly 400,000—had gone home. They are the ones for whom the decision to go is most difficult.

Victims Of Propaganda. Officials here say they are the victims of successive propaganda which have magnified their political fears and concerns into a great mass bewilderment.

First they were subjected to years of Nazi propaganda, beaten down with ideas as well as by physical oppression. Liberated from the Germans they came under the influence of the so-called "London Poles," the former Polish exile government which was bitterly opposed to the present Soviet-sponsored regime at Warsaw.

During that period they were subjected to the London propaganda, anti-Russian and anti-Warsaw.

Gradually this situation has been altered until today, according to information at the State Department, the Warsaw government has access to the camps where the displaced Poles exist. Giving them this access by arrangement among the American, British and Polish governments opened the way under the general cooperative banner of UNRRA for the present drive to persuade the Poles to go home.

Cool Towards Poland. What makes it such a strange campaign is that neither the United States or British governments profess any enthusiasm at all for the present government and the present political situation in Poland. However, authorities have long since ceased to talk of the Poles in Germany as being anti-Polish government. The present official view of the Poles is that as largely peasant people who have survived years of slave labor and internment they should be able to get along almost as well under another regime in Poland as under another.

The cardinal rule of the education campaign, designed to resolve their bewilderment into a desire to go home, therefore, was described as being to set forth the advantages of their returning to Poland without in any way seeking to misrepresent conditions there or making promises which could not be fulfilled.

It costs $10 to $30 to repatriate a displaced person out of Germany, according to official sources here. It costs the same officials say, more than $250 to maintain the person in Germany for a year. There are roughly about 150,000 displaced Poles in the United States zone in Germany and substantially more than that in the British zone. The French have relatively few displaced persons of any nationality. The total of all nationalities in western Germany is estimated at around 1,000,000.

ITALIAN VETERANS MAKE PLANS FOR STATE CONVENTION

Local Post Asks to Play Host at September Meeting

Members of Matera-Mele Post, Italian American War Veterans, announced last night that they were making every effort to have Troy chosen as the site of the Italian Veterans state convention. The drive for a Troy convention was reported by John T. Mancini, commander, after a session at 191 Second Street when the group played host to state officers and guests from other area posts.

Posts represented included Albany, Utica, and Herkimer.

The post announced a concentrated drive and had set 200 as the drive quota in 1946.

The meeting was attended by Andrew Padula, state commander and state officer Ralph Margiasso. The state commander stated that the drive for members in the state has set 20,000 total membership as its 1946 quota.

Rockets Common Sight In Sweden

Stockholm (AP)—Ghost rockets—described as a small object with mysterious spool-shaped speeding a flaming tail which speeds at great heights and vanishes within a few seconds. Eyewitnesses say the rockets make no appreciable sound.

Newspapers recently carried a picture of the rocket, secured accidentally by a cameraman who was photographing a landscape. It showed a streak of light trailing from a small dark body, looking much like a comet.

Only in a few cases is it known that the missiles actually landed in Sweden. Military personnel have been busily dredging a small lake in Lapland.

Military authorities said the missiles evidently passed over Sweden in a huge curve. Some reports indicated the objects carried a device for self-destruction, and military experts said some apparently had exploded in the air. The longest flight of any of the missiles, so far as military experts could determine, was about 600 miles, as compared with the range of 25 to 45 miles for the first German V-2 rocket bombs.

There is no comparison, however with the rocket bombs. The ordinary missiles are small, and at low altitudes seem almost square. The bottom of the object appeared to have been painted red, eyewitnesses said. Some observed these missiles flying extremely low.

These reports have been substantiated by a Swedish officer, a fiver, who saw one of the rockets during a recent flight.
