

The 4 Best Natural Skin-Care Brands Right Now

This all-natural line of skin- and body-care products started on two farms in Portsmouth, Rhode Island, in 1999. Founder Brenda Brock comes from a long line—eight generations!—of farmers (clearly this was her destiny). She began creating products from herbs grown on Maplewood Farm and Swan Farm and selling them at a roadside stand.

These days, Newport-based Farmaesthetics sources certified-organic ingredients from small farms and co-ops around the country but still uses crops from several Rhode Island farms for limited-edition and seasonal products. We're big fans of the silky Nourishing Lavender Milk, a blend of soy oil, witch hazel, beeswax, calendula, and lavender essential oil that you can slather on your face, body, or anything else that needs to feel incredibly soft.

