

RICHARD ST. BARBE BAKER QUOTATIONS

T C T S T E C R E E
I F O H E S N I S A H E G R E A Y S F
L I V A N G W R I I H G I S T H S O T I E T T E O T O F

P B L W I T
T R S S I N I R E O W A S E I T D
I N N E T N R M A T Y E S D L A F E R A N H
M E E E A A D A T N E A N F T H I T E R S A R E E

A R E V E U
Y A H A N I T S R G E C W O A N T H B
W E O U T C I T S G T U E E A A O C E R L T R Y S Y

Here are three quotations by Richard St. Barbe Baker. The letters have fallen like leaves from trees exactly under the column above where they have fallen. However they have fallen in a mixed up order. Bring them back up into the top puzzle to figure out the sayings.

stbarbebaker.wordpress.com friendsafforestation@gmail.com <http://friendsareas.ca>

A forest as a society of living things, the greatest of which is the tree.
Men and trees, water and trees, man and water are inseparable. This is the trinity of life.
You can gauge a country's wealth, its real wealth, by its tree cover.