

ASK . SEEK . KNOCK .

ASK .

SEEK .

KNOCK .

Behind the lyrics of Kekal's Quantum Resolution album

Jeff Arwadi

2020

[Updated March 2022]

Content is not copyrighted. Feel free to redistribute and share this piece.

kekal.org/quantumresolution

“Ask, and it will be given to you; seek, and you will find; knock, and it will be opened to you. For everyone who asks receives, and the one who seeks finds, and to the one who knocks it will be opened.”

How could we claim to “have received” without even asking? How could we claim to “have already found” when in reality we don’t even try to seek? How could we claim that “the door is open” when we haven’t even knocked it in the first place?

Contents

Chapter 1: Introduction*

Chapter 2: Quiet Eye*

Chapter 3: Spiritual Anarchism*

Chapter 4: Inward Journey*

Chapter 5: The Sleep System

Chapter 6: Testimony*

Chapter 7: Driven*

Chapter 8: Zoe*

Chapter 9: Hidden No More*

Chapter 10: Apocalypse: Quantum Resolution*

Chapter 11: Pneumatic Union

Chapter 12: Quotes and References

NOTE: Contents of chapters marked with * have been updated in March 2022.

Chapter 1: Introduction

It was around the middle of the year 2016 when my inner-self began to shift and I recognized myself being awakened from the many years of slumber, but not until undergoing some extended period of discontentment, emptiness and spiritual agitation (or what many call it as “the dark night of the soul”), where I found myself struggling immensely deep within. So many questions lingered in my mind, mostly starting with “why” and “how”, questions about my existence, about the world, the universe, the purpose of this life, etc. and at one point they culminated in the so-called ego death, where I felt completely “crushed” and lost my sense of willpower, as I could feel my gut hitting the rock-bottom. I surrendered myself and admitted a complete defeat, because I no longer had any energy left to keep taking control of my life. I could not understand and see the purpose in handling this so-called “life” that felt way too fake/synthetic, and in many instances too evil to be considered as “worth living”. Everything seemed to be just a game of survival. A sinister and very dark game indeed. I could no longer move on in this status quo.

Not too long after my complete surrender, I started to experience a series of strange synchronicity; the term in which I was already quite familiar (learned a bit of C.G.

Jung back in the University, and yes, also from The Police album), but never knew I could ever experience that myself. This series of synchronistic events led me to make some bold decisions, including selling my home, paid-off debts, left a full-time job, and moved to another city (which I previously had no idea where exactly), all happened within the same year: 2016. The only guidance was the subtle signs interpreted from those synchronicities. People may argue that signs can be dismissed as coincidences, but what really is a coincidence? There's no such thing as coincidence. If life is merely a coincidence and I was born as a result of coincidence – only to experience series traumatic events and failures with the aim just to survive by being selfish in a rat-race, then it is completely meaningless. In the bottom of my heart, I strongly felt that it wasn't that life itself is meaningless, but I wasn't just able to find that meaning of life which is somehow concealed.

Unaware at first, after some months of getting weird experiences and having strange physical symptoms, I then realized this is what people call as Spiritual Awakening. But it was far from “the trip of wonder and awe” like the effects of DMT, ayahuasca, or certain mushrooms, but instead, I began to feel negative energy from people and environment. I lost some friends (and even relatives) as they backed away for no obvious reason. I could no longer eat most meat as my stomach rejects them, and I started to become embarrassingly more and more emotional. My ears started to hear annoying high-pitched ringing sounds. I regularly wake up around 2 or 3 AM for no reason, and often see repeating numbers on the digital clock, sometimes multiple times a day. There are many other symptoms, but the huge part of this shift is when I've received continuous revelations regarding who we are and where we are. Basically, the knowledge of the universe, the hidden or suppressed history of the Earth, our species and humanity, the control-system of the world, and how ancient civilizations and empires came about, far beyond what is told officially in normal education, tradition and religion because they are being suppressed and twisted by the control-system. At some point, the revelations of this new knowledge caught me off-guard and I freaked out, literally, because many of them contradict my previous beliefs that I've got from dogma and propaganda since childhood. It took courage to "deprogram" my old mindset, but at the same time these new understandings have given me some form of rest or closure from the many years of agitation, because it is the first time everything starts to come together and make sense.

I then started to buy many books (this alone freaked my wife out as I bought more books in one year than the previous 10 years combined), started to listen/watch many interviews, lectures and speeches on YouTube, and found many individuals from different kinds of expertise (whether they're investigative journalists, spiritual mentors, theoretical physicists, mystics, philosophers, psychologists, religious scholars, historians, etc.) whom I now regard them as my teachers because they give many insights in order to connect the dots, even though I may not agree in some of their views.

In 2018, following the release of "Deeper Underground" album, I decided to write the lyrics for the new songs, most of them are now represented in "Quantum Resolution" album. All the lyrics have a common theme, which is about seeking and understanding, and they have become the most spiritual and introspective ones I've ever written. They are all based on the new realizations that I've got.

"Quantum Resolution" is by-far the most important Kekal album from the lyrical perspective. It can be considered as a "concept album" (the second of such from Kekal, after 2007 album "The Habit of Fire"), with all the songs relate themselves to the main/central theme, one way or another.

Thematically, the album possesses a very spiritual nature and the lyrics were written by music-contributor & producer Jeff from what have been revealed continuously during his personal spiritual journey of awakening or so-called Gnosis. It tells about knowing who we really are and where we are going. The lyrics dig with our dark history from a distant past, and also dig into our present time and the future as well: what is our role here on Earth, and how do we deal with all the deceptions that are so rampant and very structural encompassing every aspect of life, as we are closing the chapter of our present age.

The above two paragraphs are taken from the album's official press-release, and just like the previous album "Deeper Underground", all the lyrics were written first before the music, so that the music acts as an accompaniment or soundtrack to the message written in the lyrics. I also decided to do an in-depth explanation about the lyrical background of every song. That's when this discussion-style Q&A took form as a supplemental document that is made available via Bandcamp (in both mobile-phone friendly .epub file and .pdf) as a download link on the digital booklet when purchasing the digital version of the album. My suggestion is to enjoy and listen to the music first and let the music speak its own language, then listen again while reading the lyrics, and then read this document as you might have questions in mind regarding the lyrics.

I really hope that this whole discussion will give some insight and enlightenment, to encourage ourselves in seeking and inquiring further regarding life in general. By no means this discussion is designed to confuse or to discourage anyone especially Kekal's faithful listeners known from their diverse backgrounds, even though the subjects are quite “controversial” (enough to make Facebook to actually suppress Kekal and once deleted an early iteration of the Q&As after it was posted on Facebook note) and some of you may find this as “disturbing” and “offensive” depending on your level of tolerance, because they don’t quite represent your current personal belief/conviction or political/ideological stance. Please be aware that this writing is not to be taken as a dogma either, as I am against it. Also, I may have some errors in understanding and interpretations because I’m still pretty much at the beginning of my journey of seeking and learning, and there are plenty still to be discovered and dots to be connected. However, despite all the imperfections and subjectivity, I can claim that what I’ve received so far right now is already getting much closer to the reality than everything that has been told in the mainstream narrative either through dogma and propaganda in the past 40+ years of my life. That’s one of the reasons I’m eager to share these revelations no matter how offensive they might be. In this case, please feel free to take this writing as some kind of reference point or insight, so that it may help to give clues whenever and wherever you may have your own personal quest about life. I encourage anyone reading this to use discernment, and let the heart be the guide, instead of logic. I believe that now is the moment of awakening, and we don’t have too much time as the Earth is undergoing a shift in the collective consciousness. Sooner or later, all souls will have to choose one out of only two options: going towards the Light or away from the Light. We are currently standing right at the fork in the road.

March 2022 update: I have added some more paragraphs into the answers or replaced the original ones in the newest updated version of this writing. Chapters marked * on Contents page mean there are updates within the paragraphs.

Thank you.

Jeff

Q: "Quantum Resolution" is said to be the 2nd concept album under the Kekal banner. The first one is of course the band's 6th album: the classic and highly-regarded 2007 "The Habit of Fire". Is there any similarity between the two in terms of the general concept of both music and lyrics?

Jeff: To some degree, there's a line that connects both albums, other than the fact that it's the 6th and 12th album respectively. "The Habit of Fire" basically tells the story about recognizing slavery in a kind of modern-day post-dictatorship urban setting. It's a fictional story but based on a combination of real experiences from psychological, historical and existential perspectives. It tells about those in power, the authority, that always manage to enslave us as their workforce or "assets" for their benefits, by giving us false freedom and "robotic" mindset of needs, obedience and survival. Then after some period of confusion and isolation, the protagonist found that he possesses the power of imagination, that can create a so-called "alternate world" only from imagining or day-dreaming. At first, he got freaked out and thought that he's going insane because his "imagination" became more and more "real" and at some point even entered his perception, but these so-called imaginations or fantasies actually helped him to escape his prisoner mindset (his sense of powerlessness), and with that he can actually fight his own fears and terror. Towards the end of the album, on the last track called "Escapism", it talks about his escapism; a kind of fantasizing or imagining his escape from his prison of enslavement and that gave him hope as if he would finally find an escape in reality.

Now, the lyrics on "Quantum Resolution" tell roughly about the similar story, but based on my own spiritual journey and experience. And this is far more real to me. Since a few years ago, I've got so many synchronistic revelations leading me to receive new knowledge or insights, whether through in-depth research on history from many perspectives, archeological discoveries, myths and traditions from ancient civilizations, etc, down to the more recent findings in Quantum Field Theory, in order to connect all the dots. It's all based on the basic quest of getting to know who we are. Those which also help expose the lies and deceptions of so many things I previously held whether as a result of dogma and propaganda taught since my childhood days through education, religion, media and so on. Same thing, there was a period of me freaking-out when I came to the realization that this world and this whole perceptual "universe" of matter; our dimension including space-time, is some kind of illusion or "holographic" one. [reference link 1] [reference link 2] An imperfect "shadow world/universe/dimension" so to speak. The Matrix that "virtually" simulates or modeled after the real incorruptible one, and that we're somehow "bound" within this matrix where perception to this holographic "reality" seems to be real, without even realizing. Also some other revelations about the origin of our species, and the nature of this world that is ruled by these spiritual forces of evil that always try to enslave us. And also about the nature of god or gods that influenced or even maybe directly told our ancient civilizations to worship as god(s), is/are not God in the true sense, but it/he/they became god(s) that most people tend to worship due to the traditional and/or religious backgrounds, also because of the systematic deceptions. But on the upside, one of these realizations that I've got about who we really are, is that we are actually above those rulers in the Spirit, the Spirit that comes from the true God the Father/Source which enables us to communicate directly to the Source (without any mediation from religious authority) and lead us into ultimate re-connection to the Absolute Reality, once we're no longer in this "bodily prison"/avatar in the holographic universe. I've learned so much during this short period which I call it a journey of discovery, or gnosis by popular term. Many of the lyrics are based on the personal revelations that I've got. Later on, about early 2018, I came across the suppressed old writings that were meant to be destroyed by those in power (which re-appeared again not too long ago), which actually re-affirm almost everything that I've experienced and things that have been revealed.

Musically, I can't say much because there are 12 to 13 years in between. I can't really go back to what Kekal had during recording "The Habit of Fire". The environment is very different now, and I don't have time to play around with anything as much as I did in 2006 when "The Habit of Fire" was recorded. "Quantum Resolution" is probably more "spacey" and maybe more "cosmic" at the same time, and less complex in terms of structural arrangements than "The Habit of Fire". The lyrics are much more spiritual, so the music would reflect its introspective and esoteric tendencies than the almost over-the-top experimentation on "The Habit of Fire", because that album talks about wild imaginations as part of the story, while "Quantum Resolution" is about spiritual journey and personal revelations. "Quantum Resolution" is the most spiritual album I've ever written in terms of the lyrics.

Q: To those who think all the Gnosis and spiritual awakening stuff is either just part of the gimmick, a form of mental illness, or even just plain nonsense, what are you going to say to them?

Jeff: Well, I don't have a problem with those kinds of thoughts or statements, and I don't think it's necessary to respond in a way to create an argument. It's all based on their perception, so it's their own problem or whatnot. I might have thought the same thing prior to my own awakening. I previously thought that spiritual awakening was just a mere fringe religious and "new age" term, without any real spiritual significance that could really transform a person supernaturally. I was dead wrong. There's this popular saying "beauty is in the eye of the beholder", so in this case I would say "Gnosis is in the third eye of the receiver". It's hard to believe it from the logic alone, unless we ourselves experience it.

Chapter 2: Quiet Eye

"behold, i am with you always, until the end of the age" observe the signs of times with quiet eye and contemplate these events in silence as we are approaching quantum resolution when earth is to be made new in cosmic reclamation the day of tribulation is the day of purification with love, we shall cross beyond the boundaries of spacetime open the portals into new dimensions of eternity where souls to be released from spiralling bondage as it was prophesied so will it become redemption has been done, captives are now free unclouded is the destination of oneness eternal with christ in me, we make complete reattachment vibrations increasing as consciousness shifting feel this truth as the flow of divine energy connecting us to the source once again and we will no longer fall back to sleep embrace mystical transformation enter the course of knowing god our guiding spirit is the light that shines through this process of becoming

Q: What is the meaning behind the title "Quiet Eye" and what does the song speak for?

Jeff: The term "Quiet Eye" has a double meaning in this case, first I need to explain its original meaning, which is actually a term referred to by Prof. Joan Vickers, and it's about putting a visual and mental focus on a single concentrated (not-broad) target before performing the task related to that. It is beneficial in sports and surgical training, to achieve better performance. The first line of the lyrics say "observe the signs of times with quiet eye", so it is about quietly but deeply observing our condition on Earth (and the Universe) by noticing all the changes, where the world is going, etc., but without being distracted by the severity of the issues and all the chaos surrounding them. It is about being a quiet but active observer.

The second meaning, the one depicted on the cover art of the single version, is about Pineal Gland. Located in the centre of the brain, Pineal Gland has been associated for ages as the "spiritual antenna", who serves as a "connector" between the body/matter and the aetheric realms. It is popularly named as "Third Eye", the same thing depicted on the ancient Egyptian hieroglyphs as "Eye of Horus", and according to Hinduism it is the sixth out of seven chakras, so it has spiritual significance to them.

Philosopher and mathematician René Descartes called pineal gland as the "principal seat of the soul", while we may not consider that our soul literally resides inside the pineal gland, we normally treat pineal gland as something more than just biological in its functions, because it regulates our circadian rhythm: which is our sleep and wake patterns in connection to our time cycle. It produces melatonin from serotonin during nighttime, through the process of chemical synthesis. So by this means, it is how we adjust sleep-and-wake patterns and thus our whole biological cycle and tune our body to the Earth's rotational period of day and night. This sleep-and-wake mechanism may also apply in the spiritual sense, not only biologically. Whether or not this organ has some spiritual significance as well, it's up for us to decide (at least I personally believe in this), however we need to admit that there is still some lack of understanding to the overall function of pineal gland itself, other than the truth that the calcification of pineal gland (by the high exposure to fluoride in tap water and toothpaste) can lead to various diseases such as alzheimer's and other types of dementia. Once again, by this second meaning, the lyric line "observe the signs of times with quiet eye" can also say "observe the signs of times in spiritual way": how we see the world around us, and of course ourselves as participants, from the spiritual perspective, by waking up spiritually from the deep sleep and eventually being transformed, as the knowledge of the truth of our existence is getting revealed throughout the course of the journey. And that's the main theme of the lyrics.

Q: There are mentions in popular chats about the so-called "Illuminati" symbol with the glowing triangle with one-eye placed on top of a pyramid depicted on the US dollar. Do you have comments or explanation regarding this?

Jeff: This will be very long to explain thoroughly, but that symbol is somehow connected to the original use taken from the ancient Egyptian hieroglyphs regarding the third-eye (pineal gland) to symbolize enlightenment, but the meaning has been twisted by those with the Luciferian (false-light/satanic) agenda within the top-level global secret societies, such as the Freemason. They also use the term “enlightenment”, but in a different way. They basically keep the knowledge (of the universe) by themselves as means to control the public and to make themselves as the authorities of the world. That’s also why they put the eye at the tip of the pyramid, known as the “eye of the providence”, as they place themselves as the ones resides on top of the pyramid, separated from the bottom part. Many of the high level government leaders are high-degree Freemasons, and our whole society is very well connected to almost all the top level hierarchies within the many organizations to assert control over the whole world through many avenues such as arts, entertainment, religion, corporation, media, and so on, and to keep the rest of humanity as slaves within the veil of ignorance.

Many of the symbols that are used by the so-called cabal, deep state, or “illuminati” are actually taken or grabbed from the ancient knowledge of sacred geometry, like the triangle, pentagram, hexagram, for example, in order to tap the energy of that geometric patterns. I believe because geometric patterns hold an energy, and can be obtained through geometric shapes and certain symbols. Our entire universe is made of energy. It can be used for either benevolent/good or malevolent/evil intentions. For example, an infinity symbol ( $\infty$ ), it can represent an immortality or the eternity of existence – the consciousness that never dies. It's an ancient spiritual symbol. But on the flipside, recently it is also being used by those with the Luciferian agenda to represent the so-called “bondage loop”, trapping people within their matrix control system as slaves. You can see this symbol being used by corporate venture capitals, banks, and the money lenders. For them, this infinity symbol represents bondage, because as people take the bait of borrowing money, they are trapped within the bondage of debt. Same thing this symbol is being used recently by Facebook's parent company Meta. I believe their intention is to trap people within their bondage (matrix control system) of virtual reality, hence in using that symbol. Another example is the Nazi symbol; it uses the very ancient spiritual symbol of a swastika, a symbol that has been used for ages by Hinduism and Buddhism. Good or evil doesn't really lie within these symbols, but shapes (also in words) carry certain energy vibration that can be harvested with the use of these symbols depending on intentions.

Chapter 3: Spiritual Anarchism

we are children of the incorruptible source the living father, pure beginningless light but our world is ruled by evil archontic forces who establish the role of divine dominion resist the governance of these dark spiritual energies that manifest within the powers of the ruling elite controlling us with their global mass deceptions enslave us within the construct of perceptual distortions look what they have done to employ the system of economy, politics, religion, media, education feed us with constant fear, hate and ignorance try to keep us away from love, peace and wakefulness no gods, no masters, we are not their slaves no rulers and authorities shall we bow knowing the fact that archons are never above us in spirit they have never been since the dawn of humanity now is perfect time to reclaim souls from these lesser gods seize this end-time momentum, join the blessed movement it is our turn to wake up and resist the new world order their diabolic agenda of total domination of mankind together we fight the good fight, activate the inner anarchist the truth has set us free, let us rise against subterfuge

Q: Tell us about the song "Spiritual Anarchism". I know that you're a self-proclaimed anarchist and you don't see the philosophy of anarchism as merely "political" in its context, but far deeper down into existential, psychological and spiritual degrees. What is exactly spiritual anarchism?

Jeff: Well, the lyrics are pretty much self-explanatory. The term anarchy itself derived from Greek word "a" meaning "no" or "without", and "archon/archi" meaning "ruler" or "authority". So anarchism, by its spiritual substance, is about rejecting the dominion of the archon, the ruler(s). It is the basic stance of Kekal. The band's 1996 demo is entitled "Contra Spiritualia Nequitiae", which is Latin for "against the spiritual forces of evil". So it is about rejecting and resisting the spiritual forces of evil, the archontic forces who rule and dominate this world (the Earth and our whole dimension). This is really a spiritual attitude, knowing and understanding which stance we are at. By first identifying who are these forces of evil who rule this world (not only in the present-time, but it goes back to the ancient times where you can trace its lineage throughout history of empires and advanced civilizations), one can see the bigger picture about the whole archontic system, up to the point of finding out about this holographic-universe, our world as a mere "simulation" bound within the matrix of space-time. There are lots of deceptions and twist-and-turns; we could be led to believe that we're in the "good" stance because of dogma and propaganda, but in actuality we just serve the will of these archons without even realizing. The lyrics are very strong in my opinion, and I'd say let the lyrics do the talking.

Q: So your personal adoption to anarchism is also part of the process?

Jeff: Yes. It was part of what has been revealed to me too. I used to take anarchism just as the main ethic or philosophy within the music especially for Kekal, which turned out to be beneficial (the basis for do-it-yourself ethic/mentality, etc.), but not quite for my personal philosophy in what I see life as a whole. Right now I'm an anarchist at heart. Spiritually, I'm in alignment with The Source, true beginning-less Light who is The Father. When we think about God as The Source or Father, or as others may also call Him as Universal Consciousness, Totalities, The One, etc. there's no systemic hierarchy of master-and-slave. Between us and The Source, it is more like a familial, love-based connection of oneness: we are part of the family, we are the branches of the same tree. The tree provides life to the branches as long as the branches are connected to the trunk and the trunk to the root.

Q: There are many people who still think anarchism is all about chaos and disorder. Your comment on this?

Jeff: People who think anarchism is all about chaos and disorder get the wrong understanding of what essentially is anarchism, probably also because of the propaganda that always try to discourage people of adopting anarchism because those who control the society, want people to be obedient and to fear the authority, so being anarchist is considered as threat to the authority. People mostly use this term casually without understanding it, I mean, they can easily look on the Internet and learn the basics.

Anarchy itself refer to the case (or situation) where there is no authority or ruler over the society, the absence of authority. So, anarchism (with added "ism") is the philosophy that lays the foundational thought in which anarchy can/may be applied as the system. When we talk about system, it can be applied to anything: social system, governmental system, individual system, religious system, and even also to spirituality. My definition of anarchism is "non-hierarchical and anti-authoritarian approach to self-governing/ self-managing". Does it sound destructive? Does it sound chaotic? No it doesn't. With anarchism, you will use your own conscience, common sense and self-control more often in many situations, because you would always think something like "I don't do this not because the law forbids me or I will be punished/damned, but because I don't feel this is the right thing to do". Like the diet as a simple example: You don't need external restrictions (religious, etc.) for you to choose what kind of diet you think is suitable for you. You are responsible for your own well-being without being bound by external laws.

The fact is that the majority of anarchists are vegetarians and vegans, but they can eat anything if they want to. There are no dietary rules/restrictions for anarchists. Now let's think this way: if they are not bound by dietary rules, why on Earth they ended up becoming vegans and vegetarians, not cannibals? You know what I mean? That's just one of many other examples. I also know personally that anarchists possess better ethical and moral compass than the so-called religious people. I guess it's also something to do with the lack of fear in relation to punishment from authority. The more you take away your fear, the more you'd respect others around you because you don't automatically feel "threatened" by them, hence the display of good ethics.

Q: I've heard that you received a bit of stir again lately because what you say on the lyrics of the songs from this album is "controversial" enough to make some people feel agitated and even hostile or defensive, especially those who claim to be strictly "religious" within their mainstream dogmatic understanding. They might still think the album would fall on "their side" but they found that it is quite the opposite. How do you see this issue?

Jeff: I'm not here to get people to agree with me, or even to convert them. I don't think it's my role to get people on "my side". Conversion is a marketing term, and doesn't apply to spirituality. Spirituality is all about seeking, learning, and also planting seeds around. It is everyone's responsibility on a personal level to seek the truth for him/herself and wake up from deceptions. They can enter the process of repentance and healing after that. I believe that if anyone sincerely seeks, then answers will be given. I'm here just to share a testimony based on my experience of all the revelations that I've got as the result of me seeking, and I use music as a medium of sharing and planting the seeds. I can understand their response which is typical. I grew up with all the dogma being smashed into my head too, and for years and years I didn't question life any further and didn't dare to seek the truth from the core of my soul. But only after the point of awakening in 2016 as I began to get many new revelations, and from all the parallel research that has been done in the past 3 years, the truth is starting to come up one by one. I'm still connecting the dots right now. So many questions are still yet unanswered, but the bigger picture has started to unveil. It turns my old understanding upside-down.

Most people who put themselves deep into religion tend to act based on fear and denial, and sometimes envy as well, even most of the time without realizing it because it has become part of the psyche. I came to understand this pattern because I studied psychology and how the mind works. Please note this is not to brag about my background but just to point out I don't just throw some wild guessing here. Fear and envy correlate strongly to the acts of denial and defence. As for people who think they are good, based on following the dogma, it will be harder for them to accept new realities, so they tend to look outward, to automatically judge others that don't share the same standpoint, rather than look inward to themselves. They are afraid to learn that whatever "truths" they cling upon and make them feel proud of, may be possible to fall apart as the new information is coming in, so no wonder they would become defensive and "hostile" in guarding what they cling upon. It's their ego taking over their fear. It's a classic psychological response, known as defence mechanism. As Plato once said "We can easily forgive a child who is afraid of the dark; the real tragedy of life is when men are afraid of the light."

But however, truth is truth, and it stays as it is. Immutable. So when we see in that perspective, what we perceive as truth may not be closer to the truth, and in some cases they could be even deceptive. So that's why seeking is very important.

Chapter 4: Inward Journey

it is a lonely but beautiful journey walking down the narrowest path treading on the unfathomable through the dark night of the soul past convictions are falling apart escaping the web of illusory matrix perforate its sheath layer by layer as self-structures slowly dissolve in this present moment of being surrender to the presence of love make peace with self and the spirit letting go all remnants of karmic past declare soundly that i am here the kingdom of god that dwells within taking us to the journey of discovery and co-create the future of humanity

Q: Can you tell us about the 3rd song "Inward Journey"? The lyrics have been published for a while and the message has a very strong and somewhat intimate spiritual context. How do you define it?

Jeff: I was joking with my wife the other day, when we talked about me being uncomfortable with any temperature, either it's too hot or too cold. I said that it feels like I can't adjust to the Earth's system any more. It was a joke, but I think that's the point of awakening. You realize that you don't really belong in this limiting realm, and then you tend to search for answers. It takes a journey inward, to seek the truth and to know ourselves. When you do that sincerely, the answers would be given. The Source, the highest God, would give you answers by providing insights throughout many kinds of discoveries, either by means of research or direct experience. They vary depending on each individual, they can be highly mystical, or they can be pretty much normal. The key is to seek within, to know yourself, and then relate it to the world where you live. Only through seeking we would then get the answers. Seek that you may find. Be the seeker, not blind receiver. This is spirituality. Let's say you feel something "strange" in how the world or this universe works, and rather than just dismiss it out of fear or divert it to various superficial pleasures out of denial, you would go ahead and seek for the answers. Sometimes by acknowledging the bitterness and ugliness of this world, we would start the journey of awakening. Religion gives many false answers unfortunately, so most of the time, what you get from the dogma that "pretends" to provide answers as "the ultimate truth" in front of your face, actually would get in the way of your quest to seek the real truth. There's also a misleading term of "spiritual awakening" being used within the religious circles, which doesn't point to the real awakening, only some self-dedication to religious commitments. Same thing with the term “born again”.

Q: Any new insights about your spiritual journey of awakening and transformation that you can share with us?

Jeff: The whole process has been quite intense in terms of changing my whole perception to self and the world/universe. It was slow to begin with, I mean, for more than a year I did not even realize what was going on within me. I didn't realize my own awakening. The essay that I wrote as an accompaniment to the 2018 album “Deeper Underground” (bonus material for digital download, has since discontinued —ed.) tells about the process, to some extent. I can share some of the changes that happen within me: the first one is the shift of my diet. There was an extended period of time that my stomach started to reject meat, first it was sausages, burgers and processed meat, then lean meat starting from pork, then beef, lamb, chicken, and so on. I just felt sick and nauseous and always wanted to puke a moment after I ate meat. It also happens with anything that contains high-level chemicals, like foods with additives, junk GMO foods, and the like. At first I didn't realize that was part of this spiritual shift, so I thought there was something wrong with my digestive system. Went to a doctor and took some lab tests. When the results came, the doctor said there's nothing wrong with my stomach. Only later on when I checked online about some of these so-called “awakening symptoms” that include changes in diet, I began to realize. So now I’m almost a vegetarian, not quite, I still eat some fish, but I may go full vegetarian or maybe even vegan later. Let’s see. Can't promise though, because I don’t want to force myself. I don’t want my ego self to decide for me. Secondly, there are shifts in my understanding of how the world works and the nature of our existence, because so many things have been revealed to me, and I believe it's by the work of the Spirit. Some of them were quite disturbing for me to digest at first, because I was too ignorant and asleep to ever let that suppressed knowledge to be revealed in the first place. But thanks be to God. I take everything as a grace now. I’m slowly but steadily moving forward towards the Source and there’s no turning back. Getting past deceptions is hard for the ego, especially when everything was taught since childhood through education and religion, whether in the forms of propaganda or dogma. They both work the same, to keep us asleep, and now I understand the reason why.

But, however in terms of spirituality, I don't want to cover the topics too much on the esoteric side, like personal experience of some sort, because this is not about me. What I’d like to share is my testimony, which is not a biography or memoir. What I write on the lyrics is more about knowing what we are during these wicked times as we are approaching the end of the age of deceit in the current lower dimensional reality of Earth, and the beginning of the Golden Age of love in the higher dimensional reality. There's a sense of urgency, that people need to wake up or at least realize all these deceptions. Of course, some may think that everything seems to be just fine despite of some “shaking” in the society in the past couple years, but I tell you, it is not. It will continue to look "just fine" until it's far too late. That's how deception works, to keep people in the state of illusion. We need to be aware, not to worry and freak out, but being aware is a good starting point in order to understand what's going on.

Chapter 5: The Sleep System

in this shadow world lies an ever elusive system integrated soul-assaulting matrix of deep sleep which evilly runs cyclically over the passing ages manifesting in chronic mass historical amnesia confusing acts of violence and war with acts of courage been exposed to this propaganda as minds deceived the way we see things has been restricted to blind sights the way we perceive truth has been distorted by trickery financial bondage of debts deter us from contentment offering passion of material wealth placed in perpetual loop where self is anchored deep in perishable belongings never finding the end on when this cycle would cease dogma detracts spiritual yearns to ones of fear and lust limiting the scope of grace within the confines of corporeality slave to plain achievements, goals set towards the superficial obsession with visible holiness, yet fail to identify real enemy the realm of matter is nothing but a perceptual illusion we have means to break free from its universal deception renounce dogma and propaganda, recognize what is in sight truth shall appear to expose lies and banish ignorance

Q: On the lyrics of "The Sleep System" you mentioned about "this shadow world". We recall the main album theme regarding the holographic image of the universe which forms our dimensional "reality": The notion that this

"perceptual reality", as you said, is merely an illusion and the universe itself works more like a simulation. Could you elaborate on that? Let's say if we actually live in a shadow image, or copy, or simulation - whatever term applies to it, then there's a higher source code which this so-called copy or shadow image was based from. Where did you draw this whole understanding?

Jeff: OK, I will explain a bit based on things that have been revealed to me so far, during my personal journey since around 2016. First of all, I was led, strongly, to do the parallel research in order to connect the dots, because upon getting the earlier realization, I knew that there are so many things that we've been lied to, so many, and most of the truth regarding the whole universe and who we are has been suppressed or hidden. Upon seeking the truth about who we are, I was led to look for deeper answers, and also through multiple "doors" or "entrances" around the same time (that's why I call it parallel research). One of the doors is Quantum Mechanics, and the other one is traditional cosmology or creation myths from the past whether through suppressed writings, archaeological discoveries, and so on and so forth, and also very recently through the study from the people who had NDE (near-death experience). Then from all the information gathered as clues, I could try to connect all the dots. It's not an easy task and can be time-consuming, and I'm still gathering more info and at the same time connecting all the dots. But if we go inward and let the Spirit be the guide, then everything would be revealed in a more harmonious way. Upon initial finding, I got "freaked-out" learning that our universe is very much possibly a holographic or projection, because that means almost what I had received in the forms of what I realized later as mostly dogma and propaganda could be falling apart. At that moment I also came to the realization that the Absolute Truth will always stay immutable, so that means what I previously received and told as the "truth" through dogma and propaganda in forms of mainstream religion, mainstream science, and mainstream historical accounts could be further away from the Truth itself. It is my own responsibility to seek the Truth, knowing what I had received wasn't quite closer to that. Then I chose to let all my past convictions to collapse (for some people this is the hardest thing to do), and more realizations came after that.

This whole concept of "holographic universe" is still very much in theoretical framework even though it is currently getting "popularity" among theoretical physicists within the fields of Quantum Mechanics. Even though some have found "evidences" through observation and experiments, a lot of things are still done only through mathematical equations, because when we talk about anything quantum, that means we talk about energetic interactions of sub-atomic particles that can no longer be perceived normally.

One of the more mainstream theories that try to explain the holographic principle is the so-called String Theory, that basically explains our perceived 3-dimensional reality is a holographic projection decoded from the lower, one-dimensional information. But also there's an even more interesting theory. It's called the E8 Theory, and what they try to explain is that our 3D reality is a "shadow image" that's geometrically projected based on the higher dimensional "objects" (or information) that move or twist. So the 8D projects itself down into lower dimensions, like the 3D world we're in upon "entering" the matrix of space-time. Basically this theory explains that our universe is some form of a shadow or projection (or you can also say simulation) of the higher dimensional one. This means we are now presented with multiple layers of realities or universes, while maintaining the same basic or root property of the main source or the origin (hence the word simulation).

In early 2018 I came across the equally interesting (I'd say mind-blowing) cosmology from the 1st-4th Century early Christian writings (or pre-Christian if you consider its formation only after it was made a religion by the Roman empire in the 4th Century) that were found buried in Nag Hammadi, Egypt in 1945, along with other texts, one of them is a small fragment of Plato's "Republic". These highly-suppressed writings (commonly called the Nag Hammadi library) were thought to be completely destroyed by the Roman authority after they took over Christianity and made it into their official religion and subsequently established their own standardized dogma. These early Christian sects, most of them were mystics and spirituals (known as Gnostic - NOT to be confused with the word agnostic, mind you), were forced to "convert" to the Roman empire's version/adaptation of Christianity, or else got killed. Anyone who didn't submit to their official dogma is commonly called "heretic", and that's the reason why the Romans persecuted and killed many of these gnostics and destroyed almost all their writings. So, back to Nag Hammadi library, it turns out many of these recovered writings came from two "schools-of-thought": the Sethians and Valentinians. Both are varied in their theological explanations, but they both say the same thing: that the universe we live in is just a projection, even in their writings they explicitly called it a "shadow" or image. It is a defective universe modeled after the incorruptible one. So in their own language of understanding, they already realized about this holographic universe almost 2-thousand years before Quantum Physics came about. I'm personally inclined towards Valentinian theology myself, although I don't take it as a dogma but rather as an insight. Some of the writings also speak loud about spiritual awakening and the kind of journey I've been through right now — with all the revelations leading toward realizations — which they call it gnosis. They are called gnostics because they put an importance on gnosis (experiential knowledge/insight) in order to knowing self and knowing the existence and the nature of what Jesus introduced in the 1st Century CE as the Heavenly Father (as the highest, all-loving transcendent God, or Source). Back then, those people already had their own god(s) that they worshiped in the temples and synagogues, but Jesus pointed out that there's the highest One in which they will need to just seek within to find the Kingdom. These writings actually shower me with a breeze of understanding.

Q: A lot of people have mistaken the word "gnostic" with "agnostic", and they thought the same although technically it is the opposite. Do you agree?

Jeff: Of course, because the "gnostic" term is very much suppressed. So most people, including myself, came to know that term from the other term that's widely used, which is "agnostic". But if we just look at the root word, we can see that the word "agnostic" came from Greek "a" meaning "without" or "no", and "gnostikoi" which refer to a person who has "gnosis" (insight or revealed knowledge). So if you came across an individual who said "I'm agnostic" that means that person claims to be not knowledgeable about things that aren't revealed to him in the first place. In most cases, things that need to be "revealed" are things that need to be sought. An active way of doing. The concept of God and the Universe, or sometimes even self, would fall under that territory. In this case, no one can claim to be gnostic, because gnosis itself takes the form of a spiritual journey or process of seeking and understanding (“becoming to know” as opposed to “came to know”). That’s why in the past, the original “gnostic” labeling came from their opponents, not from those who were labeled as. They would prefer to be called seekers instead, or spirituals.

Q: Any comments about the reasons why they (the ancient gnostics) were killed and persecuted by the Roman authority?

Jeff: Well, if you research deeply about the history of these pre-religion early Christian communities and the whole movement in the 1st to 3rd Century, which now have become labeled as "gnostics" and thoroughly dismissed as "heretical" in comparison to the mainstream Christian religion(s) that took the root tradition only from the Roman empire’s adaptation, how they were persecuted and many were killed by the authorities from Roman empire, and how they were "treated" by propagandists in the forms of multiple "heresy-hunters" and "church fathers" that came up around the same time trying to de-legitimate the movement. In the 2nd Century, most-likely they had huge following, and not only limited to the Valentinus' movement and the Sethian sects as represented mostly in the Nag Hammadi library, there were many others as well. You can also see the similar patterns that are still being used today. Anything that poses "threat" to the imperial hegemony is being demonized and persecuted. Same thing happened in the past. That happened to the original forms of Christianity in the first two or three centuries. Christianity in its earliest and original forms were once a threat to the empire, because it originally served the people at the bottom with no hierarchies between genders and social classes, they shared their wealth evenly and abolished private properties between them (recorded clearly in the New Testament as well, under Acts 4: 32-37 but these verses are rarely mentioned in the sermons of mainstream churches today), and their view was that the empire is actually aided by the devil (evil archons) or Satan because the rulers have direct bloodlines to the race of giants and the "fallen-angels". No wonder why the Apostles (incl. most of Jesus' disciples) were killed in the 1st Century.

Q: Lyrically, "The Sleep System" exposes the use of dogma and propaganda which are "designed" to work as the system of bondage to keep us humanity enslaved, and to keep the masses in the state of ignorance or "deep sleep". How do you see this system works, and its relevance to the movie "The Matrix"?

Jeff: Glad you mention The Matrix, because it is a great movie (the original one), almost to the sense of watching a "documentary". Basically, the reality we live in isn't as real as we are told to believe, and it is obscured and twisted because of the distortions of our perceptions, in the sense that what we perceive becomes pivoted away from the Truth, so that we need to actively seek for the Truth from the core of our souls. Our perception of reality is shaped through our learning process in the brain, and basically our social environment dictates most of what we learn, everything from parental upbringing, cultural tradition, movies, TV, news, formal education, religious doctrines, music, sports, and so on and so forth. Everything that has been told to us in the "official" history, for example, shapes our beliefs. What has been told to us regarding the concepts of God, humanity and universe also shape our beliefs. Our beliefs then can lead to our intentions and then actions or deeds. Dogma and propaganda have given the majority of "forced" information-transfers that lead to shaping our perception to reality, which then becomes the foundation for our beliefs and deeds. This is what I call "The Matrix". Everything that we perceive as reality is nothing more than just information, and this information is prone to distortions, especially when it is transferred from the top to bottom by means of "force" even though we don't realize we're being forced to (as opposed to information obtained by active seeking from each individual), and it has been systematically distorted by dogma and propaganda throughout the millennia, since the birth of kingdoms and empire.

Chapter 6: Testimony

my author is the father, the beginningless source made known through christ who has opened the portal to the shadowless dimensions, where chaos does not exist and my soul shall be granted a repose in pure light my author is not the jealous and envious one not the wrathful demiurge, nor his adversaries who "fashioned the adam" through genetic hybridization made him as lulu amelu: slave species from the earth i swallowed the red pill and things began to reveal for far too long we have been fooled and bound by the principalities who control this whole world into believing all their lies and deceptions to keep us enslaved within the matrix of perceptions by the father's amazing grace i rose from slumber none shall take away my path to ultimate ascension by the spirit who guides me every step of the way as gnosis received, the suppressed truth is steadily uncovered

Q: The lyrics of "Testimony" point to a very interesting point to say and ask you about the nature of what we call as the lesser god/deity or the Demiurge. Some modern interpretations from various "gnostic" schools would see the Demiurge as evil, while others see as just merely blind/ignorant. I know that you align yourself to the Valentinian school of thought, but I'm curious how you see the whole system and the role of “this kind of god” in this case, and also the Devil on the other end of spectrum?

Jeff: Well, I came to this whole realization not too long ago, and the reason why I'm inclined more to Valentinian school/theology because I'm now able to connect the dots from my other parallel research studies such as recent theories in Quantum Mechanics regarding the holographic/simulation-based universe, the Sumerian myths about the Annunaki, and other various ancient myths regarding the creation of human species “The Adam” and the Elohim (which refers to gods in plural) and the Nephilim, the history of how the empire came about, the serpent, and down to the current research in near-death experiences. It's very long to explain, and I will not explain everything here, so I'll try to be brief, even that it will be quite long:

Basically, this whole system was created by the so-called Sophia (or what Valentinian school call her/him/it as Logos or Word - that is beyond gender as we know), whom is an Aeon (a realm of consciousness as direct emanation of the Father/Source/highest-God) and that this created system laid the foundation of our holographic universe. Possibly the "1st-generation" of holographic reality or perception-based reality. They call this "shadow/likeness", a copy or representation of the actual realm of Light, even though that everything here is still conscious. While Sophia's intention was good and made the system as a "representation/simulation" of the immutable pre-existing realms of Light where she/he originally dwells, but this system turned out to be "corruptible" or "defective" (potential to be corrupted or abused), and not quite representing the Light, simply because there's a "duality" which always need to be balanced all the time. It is said that this universe of duality consists of 2/3 good & 1/3 evil (the "yin/yang" system of light vs darkness) that needs to be balanced all the time. We can perceive this system pretty much like a "self-generated quantum computing" in which the "original programmer" (Sophia/Logos) has no full control on how and where everything would end up, can't really dissolve or even "undo" this system as she/he has lost the power to do so, and also because it is driven by the free-will of the conscious elements inside the system. So this is how "chaos" started. Demiurge is simply the caretaker and "balancer" of this holographic universe, also created by Sophia to "represent" The Source/Father God within this copy/shadow universe. The Demiurge is more a soul-based energy/force who then "split" the universe or system into separate layers of dimensions/heavens or "sub-universes" and created many simulated realms or worlds (which can be explained in Quantum field as different vibrations of energy between the charged sub-atomic particles, but still made/based of the same root particles between them), pretty much just like you would split your hard-drive into multiple partitions. And these universes are bound within the matrix of space-time. Space-time itself is built from *quantum entanglement*, so both time and space as we perceived is technically an illusion. But because he himself is part of the system and dwells inside this system of duality, all he could do is to "balance" it off between the positive and negative energies (the opposing conscious forces), but he's barely able to balance it as the system itself is prone to corruption and each force is fighting one-another continuously.

Matter, or our "physical reality", is not real, just waveforms of energy. It's only perceived in the brain as real. Atom itself is made by these same charged sub-atomic particles that create energy, so there you go. There's always positive-negative interactions within the quantum/sub-atomic particles beneath the atom. This electromagnetic energy (based on the charged interactions between positive and negative sub-atomic particles) is a micro-cosmic actualization on this holographic system of duality.

Some schools see Demiurge as evil who trap souls within this holographic reality, but according the Valentinian school (and my own view as well), Demiurge is just a caretaker or representative who wants to uphold the balance between the cosmic forces of good & the forces of evil (each has its own rulers/archons - conscious energy-based entities who control each of the multiple layers of heavens/dimensions, so some are benevolent/positive & some are malevolent/negative to humanity). Remember, good and evil here appear as some kind of consequence from this system of duality. Demiurge is neither ultimately good nor evil. He possesses both capabilities. There's seemingly endless war between these two cosmic forces, and this Earth is (unfortunately) ruled by the evil one. I can conclude that the evil one is the archon who decided (and lured and brought many sub-ordinate beings -called "fallen angels" or "watchers" in ancient religious texts) to colonize Earth and established the empires which are still present until today. These so-called "fallen angels" (Nephilim mentioned in Abrahamic religions, or you can also say "extra-terrestrial/ET" or "extra-dimensional" beings, most likely the draco-reptilians ET race) who put their seeds & created the hybrid race between our species (which is already modified DNA-wise, but I won't explain that now) and their own, so that they could "physically" rule the Earth through their "bloodline", and also the ones responsible in giving us many "secrets" from their civilization outside the Earth. This can be traced in history of why all of the sudden people came to know LOTS of new stuff incl. metallurgy, architecture, engineering, mathematics, geometry, astronomy, astrology, languages, cosmetics, instruments of war, sorcery, hierarchical structures of governance, & many other things within a very short period of only some thousands of years (known as "*Neolithic Revolution*" in history, when all of the sudden people came to know everything - this can't be explained by ways of evolution/natural ways, completely impossible unless humans were directly taught - which it was indeed the case). And the fact that these whole historical accounts are suppressed to the point of people don't know the details about these events in the "official" history of Earth taught in schools, and mainstream religious dogmas also seem to deflect this story, it smells even stronger. So to my understanding, the devil (personalized as Satan or so-called serpent) is pretty much the negative entities/archons - the adversary or enemies of both the positive/benevolent archons and the system-balancer Demiurge (the head/lord Archon). From connecting the dots we can see clearly that there has always been domination, slavery, wars, exploitation, & intense suffering as the result of the existence of the empires. I see that as brutal irresponsible intervention on their end, because it created an evil string of domino-effect pretty much as what we can see until today regarding how our world has become. I also believe that these "fallen" extra-terrestrial or extra-dimensional entities (or "fallen angels" by religious term) wanted to dominate & taking advantage of Earth as they wanted to become gods over us, and abusing this whole system of holographic reality in order to get us bound as slaves.

The Demiurge, on the other hand, desperately wanted to keep some tribes of humans from falling into the luring of these "fallen angels" and their hybrid descendants. That's the reason he created Laws and also made sacrificial "blood covenants" with these tribes in the past to keep them on his side instead of the evil archons or the devil. That's why he was seen, and even declared himself, as a jealous god. He revealed himself in many names to quite a number of ancient tribes and imposed a set of "divine" laws. His law won't provide the ultimate freedom for souls away from this holographic universe and the system of duality as a whole, and it won't lead souls into salvation (re-connect to The Father/Source & get out of this holographic universe and joining the realm of Pure Light), but it can only pull people away from becoming evil and exploit one another.

Q: Some would suggest red pill and blue pill are about the red or blue in the political spectrum. How would you address that? I know it's from the movie "The Matrix" as you showed us the clip.

Jeff: Yes, I found out that when posting the Red Pill thing on Kekal's Instagram it also got a few likes by some random MAGA kids. It's funny because in Canada it's the other way around for the colour-coding: red is for liberal & blue is for conservative. And if you go to other countries, the colour red always refers to far-leftism like communism, as red-flag means socialism. Basically, the red pill, in reference to the movie "The Matrix" is all about waking up to realization, and nothing to do with the political colour-coding or identification. It is about awakening or the shift in one's consciousness, whether it's a spiritual awakening or other "types" of awakening to start with, in the end it is all about the starting point to embark the journey down the "rabbit hole". Exploring the "deeper underground" as I mentioned in the 2018 album. It is not a bliss pill, not a happiness pill. The "effect" (of realization) may disturb you, as it disturbed me quite frankly. Taking the red pill is just the beginning. Your eyes and mind will be opened and you'll be introduced to the new knowledge. But we all need to work ourselves to keep moving in our own unique journeys of seeking and learning. Each journey may be unique to every individual, but the destination is always the same: toward the Light, the absolute Truth.

Q: So taking the red pill symbolizes the awakening. What about the blue pill? What's the difference then, between those who haven't taken any pill and those who took the blue pill?

Jeff: Good question! Let's see from The Matrix scene; when the protagonist Neo hadn't taken any pill and hadn't met Morpheus, he didn't realize that his reality was a fake or illusory. He considered his whole life experience as a real thing. Then only after he took the red pill, along with Morpheus gave him the knowledge of their existence, he started to open up to the new kind of reality and started to realize the illusion of his perceived reality, the one he previously took as "real". In the early Christian literature, including the now so-called "gnostic" ones, people who are not "awaken" yet are considered as in the state of "drunkenness", or in "deep sleep". Some also call that "sleepwalking". That's the pre-awakening state, the "not-yet-awaken" state. It is almost everyone's default state, because after we are born, we would then enter the phase of learning from the environment, and in the learning process, we are shaped by dogma and propaganda all the time, which are systematically designed to reduce our capability to seek and question further regarding life in general. Now, taking a blue pill is another thing, it is called ignorance, or willful ignorance to be more exact.

Ignorance is an active choice, as we choose to ignore or to reject the wake-up calls. Ignorance is far worse than the state of "drunkenness" or "unknowing", because there is an action of rejecting or refusing new reality. In most cases, ignorance is chosen because of fear. When anyone is shaped really deeply by dogma and propaganda, and in some extreme cases by direct mind-controlling "brainwashing" methods, they would be afraid to rid them because within both aspects there's always fear being injected. The other element is bliss or comfort. There's this popular saying: "ignorance is bliss". The blue pill in this case is the "bliss pill". People can choose to ignore the new reality because of pride, and in this case their pride becomes their bliss or their comfort that they rely on. And both comfort and fear work together actually, because the fear of losing position or power or influence or wealth or prestige or the combination of those (and of course the pride which is associated by those) would hinder the chances of seeking and questioning further, the chances of being awoken, to respond to the wake up call. This is a great danger.

There's this popular saying "ignorance is the root of all evil", which is technically true, because most people who end up committing all sorts of ugly and even evil deeds are as the result of their ignorance and at the same time being deceived by the evil rulers of the world through all sorts of “systematic programming” from hidden propaganda & dogma (carefully packaged within formal education, religion, mainstream media, TV, movies, social-media & so on). These types of people are just ignorant to the reality of this world, their existence and also the purpose of all of this so-called world. This "type" of ignorance is not willful ignorance. This can be banished through gnosis, and of course will be forgiven through repentance.

Chapter 7: Driven

clueless citizens of this broken macrocosm need something to curb the misery of present reality by adopting various methods of substitution without knowing evil lurks from its rotten cavities obsessed with perceived worthiness of the perishables in what can be measured as the backers of prestige way to self-disempowerment through material slavery the dizziness of illusion: endless choices of insignificance when the truth is concealed, ignorance emerges unaware, how so many of us fall into deceits driven into the bondage loop of soul recycling chained to the karmic wheel as slave captives systematic deception is their only weapon to keep us trapped inside this quantum simulation harvesting our suffering as their source of sustenance so long as we never wake up to our true existence humanity is not a hollow and empty vessel but we chose to become a vehicle of madness and abuse unless we find the way to break out of this cycle which is necessary for our souls to rest in silence

Q: Tell us about the song "Driven", and especially the lyrics that say much about deception as the weapon of the evil entities. Why does it have to be deception?

Jeff: First thing, we need to understand that thoughts and deeds of us humans collectively affect the overall energy of the planet. That's why, the evil one, the spiritual ruler of this world, needs our energy to feed-off or harvest from. The devil, or personified as Satan, or evil/negative archon(s) is/are energy parasite(s). Here I don't distinguish between singular and plural when mentioning energy-beings, because archon is a conscious energy that can manifest in forms. There's no such thing as "many" because matter or our "perceived physical reality" is just an illusion, a kind of holographic manifestation based on energy vibrations. What is real is the energy itself, and the devil use us as slaves by trapping us within the lower vibrational level (the "realm"/dimension where they rule) by inducing us into spewing negative energies all the times such as hate, despair, trauma, suffering, envy, etc. as well as participating in doing destructive, cruel, exploitative, and manipulative deeds. Basically into doing the work for him. That's why they are working hard (and they're working even harder now, knowing that their time is very short) to deceive and manipulate us into doing what they want so that they can continue to rule. You probably have heard from the popular Sermon of The Mount sayings when Jesus told the masses to "turn and give the other cheek" instead of avenging those who bitch-slapped you. Here's the quote: "But I tell you not to oppose an evil person. If someone slaps you on your right cheek, turn your other cheek to him as well." There is a spiritual reason for not giving the devil the "food" to harvest from, and also about always practicing unconditional love and forgiveness to others, because unconditional love is the highest vibration, it is Light, and it is the best weapon used for spiritual warfare against evil. It is something that evil doesn't possess. And not only that, love and all the thoughts and deeds based on love can transform the whole vibration of everything into the higher level and thus eliminate the darkness. The only way to resist evil is to expose them, because in exposing the darkness, its power will fade away, and the acts of evil will be weakened significantly. This is very much in accordance to the basic rule of the universe, as the light comes, darkness will fade out. This is the very reason why the evil deeds of the rulers are mostly done in secret, in the shadows.

Human species, as well as many animals have enormous potential to love. I've seen videos of animals such as duck and sloth that gave the "thank you" gesture to the person who helped them away from harm. I can no longer take those examples for granted now. Love is the mother's instinct, and it is contagious. And forgiveness and being grateful are the outcome of the embodiment of love.

Humanity should be defined and perfected by love. The goal of deception is to keep human species away from love, and thus to keep human species away from humanity.

Right now, from what I can see, the biggest outcome of satanic deceptions are souls that are trapped in the lower vibrational level and unable to go to the Light because of the karmic burden or the so-called "unfinished business". This world, meaning our life on Earth, is just like a giant school with billions of students enrolled to learn at the same time. To learn humanity through various experiences. Just like any school, there are tests and assignments (in the forms of our life experiences: our encounter with others and how we treat other lives on this planet including the planet herself, our Mother Earth) and those who pass all of the assignments will be eventually graduating, while there are those who fail and don't graduate because of the burden of their karmic consequence as the results of failing many tests. The devil managed to "hack" (taking advantage of) the corruptible system of this "school" (see my previous explanations regarding the system of duality in this holographic universe on the lyrics of "The Sleep System" and "Testimony"), so that he could eventually tempt and lure us the "students" into doing his will (knowingly or unknowingly) and taking the "mark of the beast" so that we would then embody the beast and becoming the carbon-based beings and get stuck in the low vibration energy of the dense matter, as opposed to embody the Christ or the Divine Light within us (the very basis of early/original Christianity that has now been forgotten by mainstream Christian religion). That's why "the beast" symbolism as written in the Book of Revelation is considered synonymous to Antichrist as mentioned in the synoptic gospels. The purpose of this satanic deception is in order for us to never "graduate", and he would do that to many individual souls over and over again and while sucking the energy out of them each and every time.

Deception is never obvious. It is largely unnoticed on the surface, well that's why it's called deception, because it is deceiving in nature. What seems to be "good" because most of the time it's attached to the label/branding may not be good at all, and can be used to attract and lure people into failing the whole assignments of life. We've heard many times about the "wolves in sheep's clothing" analogy, and that pretty much explains deception. So many people have been deceived in this world, they would think "the beast" only appears in a scary-looking symbolism like Baphomet and the likes (I mean pointing to the more obvious forms of ugliness in life), but it is not the case. It needs wisdom to discern, to detect if we see the sheep in front of our eyes, would that be the real deal or just the clothing. I've said many times before, to be mindful of religious organizations especially the mainstream ones, because people tend to see religion as "safe haven" based on the appearance/image and the labeling, but there are lots of deceptions within it because they have become the tools of the devil. Same thing to do with many nonprofit organizations that deceitfully promote "freedom" and "human rights" but do work to enhance the imperial domination.

Q: There is one lyrical verse that I found to be powerful. Quoted: "Obsessed with perceived worthiness of the perishables, in what can be measured as the backers of prestige. Way to self-disempowerment through material slavery. The dizziness of illusion: endless choices of insignificance." The question is, why did you put focus of this "warning message" on things connected with material possession, rather than the other types of deceptions?

Jeff: Well, again, most of Kekal's audience are quite "urban". I mean they live in the larger towns and cities, up to the metropolises of some million people. People who live in a secluded area, or deep in the jungle, or even in the farming communities won't normally listen to Kekal.

When relating to the urban life, the everyday life of most of our listeners and the band contributors as well —whether as students, industrial workers, hospitality workers, office workers, professionals, or perhaps business owners too, the whole system of economy and finance (both regionally and globally) affect them very significantly. One example; we live in the era where stock markets "dictate" the economy, and as we know, stock markets can be manipulated because the whole thing is just high-level gambling with the injection of "fake money" that can be created out of thin air creating the bubble, and plus all the corporate buybacks, etc. that don't reflect the actual growth of the listed companies. Sooner or later the bubble will burst, and the global economy will start to collapse as the result of the domino effect. Also take into consideration that many people now live in debts in order to attain "desirable" kinds of lifestyle based on image and vanity, and in the so-called "developed countries" much of the economy is based on debt, both business and consumer. Many experts have warned that this coming economic collapse will be the largest one ever, much more terrible than the Great Depression in the early 1930s that led to World War 2. Now imagine if this collapse happens. I won't say many ugly things that could possibly happen, because it's not about fear-mongering in the first place, but I can tell that with the level of violence and degradation of morality in today's society, people could kill each other over a bowl of food.

Chapter 8: Zoe

let us united in unconditional love put the courage in our hearts to receive complete understanding through wisdom and revealed knowledge behold, we are transforming into light regaining pure consciousness life has finally found her home within the bosom of the seekers test every spirit that comes onto us whether it is virginal, or counterfeit whether to strengthen or to deceive discern its purpose and its fruits produced rescind the fear factor within self shift away from selfishness and greed let our vibrational energy to increase we shall swallow death as the new dawn arises

Q: Can you explain about the song, the meaning of "Zoe" and what do the lyrics say about?

Jeff: "Zoe" (ζωή) means "life" in Greek. It's a feminine name that's also quite popular for a person's name and it's somewhat identical to the name "Eve" in terms of the meaning. When we talk about life, we normally just think about biological processes and not quite about the essence of it, which is consciousness that transcends this physical realm. When we think about the essence, we may face deeper questions like: What is life? What makes us aware that we are alive? And what makes us alive in the first place? Do we really die? So when we came to realize that our body, with all its biological functions, doesn't really define our life in the first place, we would then wonder how much of the understanding about life we can get from our perceptions of reality? It's a philosophical question of consciousness and existence, that there's so much more to life beyond what we perceive through our brain.

We actually don't really die by the time our body ceases to function. I now prefer the term "pass away" rather than "die" to refer to the state when our body's biological processes stop. We're just passersby in this physical plane of existence. And then when the time is up, we'd just cross-over into the new reality (the so-called "afterlife") while our consciousness would still remain intact. Now we face the big question: "what really is life?" Consciousness itself doesn't equal life, but it is what pronounces life as an individual. Through consciousness, we understand life as we understand ourselves.

Then when we step back a little bit, and reflect around this so-called "reality" in this world. There's the war against consciousness going on, perpetrated by the evil rulers of this world. For millennia, they have always wanted to keep us enslaved by keeping us in the "robotic" mindset of needs, fear and survival, basically to "zombify" us, to make us "dead" when our biological processes still work just fine. It's the consciousness that gets whacked or "drugged" so that we would stay in the state of deep sleep, and even when we cross-over (pass away) we might not have an idea where to go. I've read the testimonies of near-death experiencers, that some of them say they saw certain souls trapped in the dark void with no idea where to go.

Through spiritual awakening, our consciousness (which is "drugged" continuously by the system) gets awakened, and then we realize that we are so much more than what we are being told through historical accounts, media, religion, education, etc. Then there's an immense shift in our consciousness, and this new realization of life is what makes us alive, and transforms us from automatons/robots/zombies to become who we really are. All the feeling of connectedness or oneness with the whole universe and other creations (and thus becoming more respectful to Earth, nature, and other biological organisms like animals and plants) is the outcome of our consciousness becoming understand that we are alive. This is truly the work of the Spirit (the virginal Spirit from the Source as opposed to the counterfeit spirit, as mentioned in the lyrics).

Q: The artwork of this song shows a butterfly. Is there any particular reason or a symbolic meaning for that?

Jeff: Yes it does. I think the butterfly analogy is a good one to explain life that goes beyond a singular form. If we look at the metamorphosis process from a caterpillar to an adult butterfly, we can see the distinct stages of that single organism, each stage that carries a different form throughout its development process, but despite the differences in forms it doesn't mean they are different organisms between the caterpillar and the adult butterfly after the metamorphosis. It merely changes its forms and structures, but we see it as one organism. Life itself goes through some kind of metamorphosis, and it transcends matter which is physical formation within space-time, but the consciousness stays and continues as one aspect. The moment we cease to exist in this incarnation, we would leave our body but that doesn't mean the end of our life, because the consciousness stays as we change/switch forms from this physical/material/biological avatar we call as physical body, to the etheric/celestical body (still having a consciousness of a perceived form/body but no longer need to function biologically), then its core which is an energy-based entity called soul. And it may return back to another physical body, depending on circumstance. In other words, life doesn't end at the grave or crematorium. So in this understanding, life itself is not an illusion. Only our physical/material/biological body that is an illusion as part of the greater quantum simulation we call world (with all our experiences from the cradle to the grave that are available for "download" and review as the consciousness left its body/avatar –this sort of “life review” can be proven by the testimonies of thousands of near-death experiencers). By the time we recognize this Matrix, I mean all the illusory nature of this physical "reality", this so-called world, we may then realize what life really is and the purpose of all of this. All we need to do is to seek life.

Q: How important is to seek life, and what kind of life that we need to seek?

Jeff: It is very important to seek life, in the sense that we need to find the way to escape this Matrix of bondage. I mean, this whole world (the kind of material/physical perception-based reality we experience right now) was supposed to be some kind of "experiential school" for the souls to grow, similar to the driving or flying simulations made for transit operators or pilots. That, alone, isn't evil per se. And this current form of life is just a quantum simulation, and works pretty much just like a hologram (but very advanced indeed). As I explained before, the main task is to learn and grow because there are choices and consequences from the expressions of free will. But due to the corruptible nature of this system (see my explanation regarding the system of Sophia on the "Testimony" discussion), there are good and evil or positive and negative energy polarities that came into existence from the state of forgetfulness, and the result of the choices to make within the polarities, there are forces and rulers/archons who manifest from these good vs evil duality. This then enabled the negative energies to creep and "hack" into the system and abuse the simulation to their own benefits. This is where the bondage of the Matrix started, and so many souls get trapped and bound where they could not get out of the vicious cycle and at the same time become slaves to these rulers/archons who hacked the system, where they can continuously feed-off the energy from the pain and suffering. To me, this is where the idea of salvation becomes very important, so that souls can/may escape from the Matrix, and this cannot be done without the intervention from the incorruptible and immutable realm where this entire system was modeled or "projected" from; the Original realm where there is only Pure Love and Light and Goodness with no duality in the system (no light vs shadow because light encompasses all, All IS Light). The realm where everything is One and it's called Silence, and there is no beginning and end. This is the realm where God The Father/The Source "dwells" (this is no longer the concept of physical dwelling place where a scope of an entity is limited by our perception relative to space, but more like The Father is everywhere as everything is One and united). I don't think we can find words to describe. Now back to the topic of salvation: Because our soul or consciousness has free will, we still need to respond or to give consent to the offer of salvation, through the embodiment of Christ within our soul or consciousness (the way dogma of mainstream Christian religion get this understanding wrong as they just stop at creed/formality alone and be done with it). Embodiment of Christ into our consciousness is the "doorway" so that the Spirit (the virginal/pure Spirit that comes from the realm of Light) can enter and enable to guide and nurture our souls in the struggle to escape this Matrix by helping us to express or emit unconditional love wherever we go. Remember that soul is a conscious energy being, and unconditional love as Christ manifested within is what purifies the soul and removes the karmic bondage embedded from this system of duality. Unconditional love itself is a light energy and that includes forgiveness, and it is a very strong energy which can transform the soul into light, in a literal way. I need to also explain the spiritual implication of repentance. Repentance (in the sincere sense) is the first step of the purification for the soul, as it would remove our supposedly bad records in this simulation (all our thoughts, intentions, deeds and their implications are recorded - it's what some people call as akashic records), so that by the time they are "downloaded" (and weighed/"scored") after we pass-away/leave this simulation, all the records that held bad karmic consequences would be gone. I've read this from certain testimonies of near-death experiencers. Repentance is made possible by the grace of The Father, through Christ Spirit that works in modifying souls' akashic records, basically re-writing the data.

However, the grand purpose of salvation is not just merely to escape this Matrix, but also in order to re-connect to The Source/The Father/Universal Consciousness, just like detached and fallen branches get re-attached to the tree trunk and become one again with the tree (for a simple analogy).

Living in this Matrix is very tiring, because we are karmically bound within this cycle and many souls are not able to graduate due to systematic deceptions from the evil one that manage keep us in the state of ignorance, so certain souls might need to restart and experience this simulation again and again to get better "score". Many of us already feel that this so-called reality is nothing but bitterness, and in many aspects overwhelmingly evil. Some choose to commit suicide, only to find out that suicide doesn't make them to escape the Matrix, as the Matrix itself also continues on the souls that are bound even in the afterlife. Committing suicide would only lower the karmic "score", unfortunately, just like a school dropout will automatically fail the final test. This is the moment to reflect about where we are and what our souls really need, and the knowledge on how to break free from this Matrix, and even the whole corruptible system of duality and all these "score" system of karma. The life of complete rest and freedom from the bondage is the kind of life we all need to seek.

Q: You pointed out that the Matrix itself also continues on the souls that are bound even in the afterlife, so where do these souls "go" after they cease to exist in this physical realm? Do you believe in the dichotomy of heaven and hell after we pass away (only 2 of such places as taught in certain mainstream religious dogmas) or there is something else?

Jeff: Well, OK, this is probably a sensitive subject because everyone who reads this will sooner or later experience the realities after leaving the body (the so-called afterlife). So please use discretion because some of you may get offended reading this revelation. I'd recommend reading this only if you're ready for such revelations beyond the familiar mainstream narrative transferred through dogma. Here we go:

Before I got the new realizations following my awakening, I automatically "accepted" the places in the afterlife being in just a dichotomy of heaven and hell (of course because of the dogma as you mentioned, being subjected to religion and education): you would enter "heaven" where you're supposed to meet "God", and then "hell" where you're supposed to be disconnected from such "God" and being punished in tremendous pain, and both have eternal or everlasting qualities. That's it. Most people take this kind of understanding as-is, and this understanding becomes their fear factor affecting their lives and the lives of other people. I always questioned that dogmatic narrative because there's something out-of-place with the nature of these 3 distinct places we're only "supposed" to know: namely Earth, Heaven and Hell, but I did not care enough because my life was already complicated and needed to be taken care first. That was the first and main problem of being in such a state of deep sleep, having "no time" to ask and seek deeper. It was the same problem that happened to me for so many years, until recently. And then after I received these new revelations and realizations, my perception of reality has shifted so drastically. Now I've found out there is so much more to the realities of life that previously I did not know or care about, because the system from the ruler of this world, the evil one, through their human representatives who have become the physical rulers of this simulation we call world, always try to suppress them and discredit them to the extent of we really have to seek out spiritually to find the answers, not only through the curiosities of the mind alone but from the depth of the soul. The lyrics of "Hidden No More" tell about this issue specifically, about the suppression of truth, also about the power of the Spirit that awakens the people from the deep sleep and at the same time reveal the knowledge to them through many clues that we could locate and access (Gnosis).

So let me start with our world: As I already mentioned a few times before, this physical existence or the reality we live in right now is a just kind of holographic simulation which functions as a place of learning for our consciousness or soul to grow or evolve. Everything we perceive is just an illusion or maya. That's one knowledge. The next question is "who's running the show and/or who's monitoring this kind of simulation?". This gets us closer to the idea of there is/are such other dwelling place(s) where there are other beings we call as god(s) and angels or "watchers" who oversee this simulation and would "receive" and communicate to our "disembodied conscious energy" or souls, and may proceed to judge once we are no longer in the physical body. Some of us would call them simply as aliens in general terms. If we stop at that, we could somewhat validate most accounts from ancient myths that are available for us to study, because they point pretty much to the same beings mentioned in so many ancient myths although in different names, like the Annunaki (gods in plural) of the Sumerian myths, or the Elohim (also gods in plural) mentioned in the Hebrew Mosaic book of Genesis, and many other ancient belief-systems. They all point to the plurality of such entities who wish to be revered by us as gods or masters that "own" our souls, in one way or another, and they are kind of at war with each "factions" intergalactically as part of endless struggles between good and evil, or even between factions of the realms that have access to the simulations, and that also extends further to some of the simulated worlds as well, like ours, which we can find out written in the ancient texts that there are disputes on the “ownership” of human souls, just like certain slave-masters fight for the ownership of their slaves. In the "gnostic" term (meaning also the early, pre-religion Christian term, as used by Apostle Paul in his epistles), they are what we know and recognize as archons or rulers (with the Demiurge as the lord/master or leader in structural hierarchy of the archons, the god of the entire system of duality), arch-angels (some also point arch-angels as being in the same tier as the archons, but dwell in the higher heavens so they are of light and are benevolent to humanity), and then the lower rank in hierarchy called simply as angels/watchers who oversee the life in the simulated worlds, these can be either of light, of shadows, and even of dense matter.

When I further study the stories shared by hundreds of near-death experience accounts (out of many thousands that are available in the online database), as well as learning from the highly suppressed early Christian "gnostic" writings which were discovered buried in Nag Hammadi, and to some extent the more recent theories in Quantum Mechanics regarding the holographic nature of our universe and the existence of parallel universes (multiverse), to my surprise they all harmoniously support each other in giving us tremendous clues and insights that can answer many of the questions regarding our world and universe (and also challenge the “official narratives” transferred by dogma and propaganda within the mainstream science, history, and religion). The interesting aspect that I've found is that these soul-based entities including the archons that dwell in the lower heavens/realms (lower dimensions) cannot access the higher realms, that these dimensional layers are pretty much "separated" based on different frequency range of the vibrations, like notes played either in higher or lower octaves. The higher the dimension, these entities are more of light and of unconditional love (literally shines/emitting light, hence they are recognized as "beings of light" by near-death experiencers), and the lower the dimension, the more "dense" and more "physically pronounced" and "material" in their appearance (like the figures with dark hooded robes, for example), and the atmosphere is felt as more intimidating and heavier. In other cases, these beings look like dark shadows with the cold and evil atmosphere. There are also hellish and torturous realms as well, in which pure evil, sinister, ugly and smelly demonic beings dwell in there. These realms are said to be in the "outer darkness" (borrowing from the gnostic term), like the shadow opposites of the inner dimensions.

An individual soul may enter any of these realms either from any of the inner dimensions/heavens, or the outer darkness, depending on where the souls originated from and the "scores" on how the soul performs while residing in the physical body, which can be measured by its frequency of vibration. If you're familiar with the term "raising vibration" or "raising frequency" used in spiritual communities, they mostly refer to the soul's energetic vibration that can also help adjust the vibration of the body. Before I creep you out, let's put this aside for now.

As mentioned in the gnostic writings, both from the Valentinian and Sethian schools of thought, there are seven heavens (or you could also say seven layers of heaven, or seven dimensions of heaven, or just simply seven dimensions) that exist within the corruptible system, the system created by Sophia/Logos as I mentioned earlier, where the law of its nature is duality (light vs darkness, good vs evil, positive vs negative, and so on), hence the need to balance it all the time. The natural balancing system is known as karma, and the enforcer (system balancer) is the Demiurge, which is the god of these seven heavens and is placed above the archons. Most religious traditions refer to Demiurge as the highest God (and many belief-systems including those within Judeo-Christian religious traditions from the Roman empire's roots, mistaken the Demiurge – which is translated in English as the Lord God of the Old Testament – with the Ultimate God The Father as introduced by Jesus) which is OK according to the Valentinian school, because Demiurge was created by Sophia as a "representation" of God The Father within the corruptible system of duality, and is not seen as pure evil negative entity as what is perceived by some other schools of “gnosticism”. Demiurge is the designated name originally by Plato and used by the Valentinian school and is said to be in-charge of the seven heavens/dimensions of the “Sophianic system of duality”, including their simulated realms created within this system. By this term “heaven”, it also means the realm for soul-based conscious energy beings to dwell, including human souls while they are not living in the simulated realms. Beside these seven layers of heavens under the Demiurge’s authority, there are also countless simulated realms (like our world is one of them) that “holographically” exist within and between these seven layers. There are Paradises within these inner layers (in the higher dimensions/heavens of the seven heavens where good prevails over evil), each of them functions as the place of rest for “graduate” souls that are given rewards for their good deeds while they were in the simulated world, also as the “waiting place” (I know it’s hard to explain the idea of “waiting” because linear time really doesn’t exist there) for these saved souls until the entire universe of seven heavens is wrapped-up, or as place in-between where souls may learn in the higher dimensional simulated worlds. These paradises may take forms as beautiful gardens along with the places for habitation and learning, and these are the places that most people call simply as “heaven”.

Of course, none of these paradises in the seven heavens can be compared to the Ultimate, immutable and pre-existing spiritual Universe of The Source/The Father (called Pleroma in Valentinian school, or also called Silence), what Jesus referred to as “The Kingdom of The Father” where everything is One and united in pure goodness, pure love, pure light. The center of everything that exists.

Now, let's focus on our world: the uniqueness of our simulated reality is that souls can be redeemed by the means of salvation right here, and eventually be brought out of the bondage/Matrix, not only from the control system of the evil archon who takes advantage of this simulated world of physical “reality”, but also to get away from this whole system of duality and karma (the “greater Matrix” so to speak) in the entire seven heavens or dimensions previously mentioned. This is by the work of Christ which can be manifested/embodied into our consciousness, and through the Spirit that guides in transforming and perfecting the souls through their spiritual journey, in order to reconnect with The Father.

Q: What is your opinion regarding the concepts of Reincarnation and Purgatory/transitory “hell”?

Jeff: In the past, once again because I grew up in traditional Protestant Christian religious education, in which their dogma doesn't recognize such concepts (there are many religions/belief-systems today who claim the Christian label on them, but more than 99% of them inherited from the dogma shaped by the Roman empire when they took-over Christianity in the 4th Century, and much of earlier knowledge of original Christianity has been discarded, twisted and perverted). I did not quite believe in the ideas of both purgatory and reincarnation, just because those were the ideas of “other religions” but I did not inquire or study further. But only after the awakening and receiving new realizations, I came to the understanding that both of these realities may actually apply for certain cases, not exactly in their traditional textbook religious concepts, and they don't apply to all human souls universally, but yes they exist as part of the karmic system. However, there are other “missing links” which need to be accepted first in order to understand both of these concepts, why they exist and to what extent they would be applied.

First of all, we need to understand the purpose of this world as some kind of educational simulation for souls to grow or to evolve. This knowledge is currently suppressed and not many people know. Secondly, due to the corruptible nature of this whole system that laid the foundation of all the life simulations within the system (the system of duality as I already explained earlier), the law of karma exists in the nature of the system.

Reincarnation could happen in a few ways, and I observe three distinct cases, at least the ones I want to discuss here. (There is also another possible case, but I choose not to explain about that right now):

1. Firstly, for any soul that isn't able to "graduate" because of the severe negative "scores" as it leaves this simulation (pass-away), by default it has to pay back in order to make itself balanced or "neutral" again. So that soul in this case would enter the realm of hell or purgatory, and get "punished" as the means of paying back all the bad deeds up to the point that it gets neutral again. The length and severity of the payback method depend on the "records" attached to the soul (I guess the quantum karmic calculator would determine the scoring), and this would apply to the soul who had been unrepentant or hateful towards the Light, so the karmic burden would stay attached as bad records are not removed. Then after it gets to the neutral state, it has to be "sent back" to the school/life-simulator because the soul will still need to finish its tasks of learning. That's one reason a particular soul gets reincarnated to another body, and I believe that this type of mechanism that gets abused by the evil one in order to keep many souls enslaved in this Matrix and cannot graduate. The term "soul-recycling" is referred to this case, and I have to say that this situation is evil and works completely against the evolution of humanity. I believe that the intervention from the Incorruptible Realm in the form of Christ which offers redeeming solution for the souls (through repentance) is because of this type of situation, as what I could interpret from the saying in the Gospel of Luke "I have not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance."

2. Then there is another case with different reason, and this reincarnation applies to souls that didn't previously spend time in the purgatory, but were sent back because they hadn't finished their "course" yet but for various reasons they had to prematurely abandon their bodies ("accidental death" might be the case for most, like the body is crushed or mangled beyond repair which render unusable for soul to enter by using that same body). This case can be backed-up by many testimonies from people that have recurring dreams of past life during certain traumatic events led to dying, like for example the multiple testimonies from young children who told their parents that they previously died in the "9-11" event (most of these children, who remember all the details and some could be confirmed with the facts upon cross-checking, were not even told about the event).
3. And then there is yet another reason, the third one, and I think this case only happens to either the souls who have already "graduated" (already in paradise), or maybe even spiritual seeds from the higher realms of Light, but they voluntarily agreed to enter the simulation again and reincarnate as light-workers (like school tutors), especially during the end of the evolutionary period of our world or end of the Age, like this era (pretty exciting, huh?), in order to assist other souls in their very last chance before our current human species is extinct, to keep focusing on the light and love and away from evil deceptions, as they will experience all the hardships and turmoils during the period of purification/tribulation which I believe is happening right now. I believe that these light-workers are already with us right now. Their missions or tasks are diverse, some to clear-up ancestral karma, in terms that they agreed to take the DNA codes upon incarnation with the karmic burden embedded from the ancestors' "unfinished-business", which are passed down through the parental lineage. Because their souls are capable to handle the karmic shadows and transmute them. Others have mission to become a light-bearer, a beacon so to speak, in order to assist the human collective in shifting their consciousness, in preparation for ascension.

Chapter 9: Hidden No More

“recognize what is in your sight, and that which is hidden from you will become plain to you. for there is nothing hidden which will not become manifest.”

a quest for seeking the truth of our nature and origin through connecting the dots from bits of clues what happened to earth back in a distant past had never been clear enough until the recent times neolithic revolution was not supposed to happen without direct intervention from the other dimension the day advanced civilizations appeared so sudden the moment imperial domination began to signify dark forces, malevolent, deceitful authorities have been here to stay since they merged themselves down creating confusion, disinformation and suppression through systematic deceptions we are lured to worship them when they decided to destroy the seekers' revelations they might think future generations will no longer know there is no such thing as random coincidence when many hidden clues reappeared after world-war-two believe in the unmediated enlightenment from the spirit to assist the soul's struggle against principalities blessed are those who continue seeking and learning while retaining love as the base of their quest

Q: Can you explain the line “though systematic deceptions we are lured to worship them”? Who are “them” in this case?

Jeff: They are the control-system, the rulers of this world, and they are the “physical” representation of the devil or evil archons in this world of simulation. There's a very strong and interesting statement on one of the writings from Nag Hammadi Library. It's from the one called "Gospel of Philip" (Note: It's neither that Philip himself wrote this piece nor the writing was attributed to him, but because this anonymously-authored piece had no title, only that the name Philip is mentioned in the writing, so the people who translated this piece from Coptic to English decided to call it “Gospel of Philip” just for the sake of identification). One of the paragraphs say quoted: "The rulers wanted to fool people, since they saw that people have a kinship with what is truly good. They took the names of the good and assigned them to what is not good, to fool people with names and link the names to what is not good. So, as if they were doing people a favor, they took names from what is not good and transferred them to the good, in their own way of thinking. For they wished to take free people and enslave them forever."

Now, when we think about deception, once again I have to tell, bluntly (because I had been there, so I got this impression first-hand from my own experience), that what these rulers want is to put their claws on certain “labels/brands” that would deceive people in the first place. No wonder, so many people in this world would fall into the hands of the rulers without even realizing. That paragraph pretty much explains everything that we can observe right now, how the control-system of the world always deliver pre-packaged twisted and perverted dogma and propaganda in all aspects of the society, and sneakily put them into the existing “brands” that carry the good image, so that unassuming masses would embed these "automatically" into their minds whether as ideological stance, religious beliefs, or down to the general mindset towards the world and society in general. Of course, within these aspects of deception, there are always people with good conscience who still keep the virtue of humanity rather than madness and cruelty, even that they are still standing within the perimeter of bondage, as they don't quite recognize the deceivers in the first place. But there are many others who have fallen into the luring and already become slaves and do the will of the rulers/control-system (for example: becoming hateful towards other people, disrespect to nature and Mother Earth, etc.), just because they thought "everything is fine" according to the label/brand attached to it, and this is what poses the great danger to their souls. These types of deceits happen way too often within the major religious, ideological and sociopolitical circles, that people could become very fanatical to the brand/label up to the point they willingly put their entire self and to do everything that's attached to the label. But if we observe closely, their behaviours are very typical across the board, as they are the byproduct of psychological manipulations or mind-shaping methods, because the majority of them give direct consent for the “programming” to work on them.

These “programming” methods happen in many sociopolitical circles, major religions, and educational institutions, because many of these institutions (especially the larger organizations) have been infiltrated by the control-system as part of their systematic programming. The same methods are used to “shape” people’s minds through movies, TV news, sports gatherings, mass media, music, etc. Lots of repetitive words used, lots of elements of fear vs pride being put together within the messages, some even use elusive subliminal messages, and so many other possible instances. We can only trace back from the fruits or the outcome. Our mind accepts information pretty much like a computer, and only our consciousness in the form of intuition can really sense it. Upon realizing that phenomena, the biggest concern is that a large number of people are deceived into accepting and following the dogma and propaganda without being aware in the first place, thus bypassing the conscious filters. It happens when they put too much trust in any organization (whether religious organization, political party, etc.) that they thought of as “trustful”, “respectable”, “virtuous”, etc. so that they would automatically give consent to whatever information that comes into their mind without resistance. It is very similar to the consent given to the hypnotist, mind-controller, or even sexual predators. Many of the victims fell into giving consent just because they trusted the perpetrators in the first place, or fell into their luring methods.

Q: The majority of people don't care about things which are hidden from them, because they don't realize the importance of the (hidden) truth that will set them free. What's your opinion about this?

Jeff: The control system, the rulers of this world know much of the hidden knowledge that we don't, because they prefer to hide them from us, the "majority of people", so that they can continue to make us as slaves to their system without our knowing. There's a popular quote from Prof. Noam Chomsky which reads: "The general population doesn't know what's happening, and it doesn't even know that it doesn't know". This quote really reflects the current state of the world, with so many people ignorantly being ignorant to what's going on. It's not that we as the "majority of people" don't care in the first place, but because we have been deeply deceived into apathy with all the various distractions and false perceptions to reality. The Matrix is very strong.

There are these secret hidden mysteries and crafts kept by certain secret societies (some of which also operate within certain religious organizations), that only their certain initiates at their higher level of hierarchy would be told but sworn to secrecy, and the purpose is for maintaining domination over the general public. The key is not about the things they know, but more about the things we (common people) don't know. I mean it's not the hidden knowledge or mysteries that would give them power or would shape them to become evil, but our ignorance to the knowledge and realities of ourselves and this world that would place us in the "weak" position and might enable them to enslave us. Why? Because once we are being put into the state of ignorance, not knowing who we are, not knowing about our history, and not knowing about the universe, etc., it would be easier for us to be manipulated through various false stories for the benefit of the control system. If we never know things that they know, it would be much easier for them to rule upon us. The slaves that don't know that they are slaves in the first place would not resist their masters. And this is where they have ruled this world for many thousands of years through various kingdoms and empires, and if they found some grassroots communities which "know too much" about themselves and the world, and these communities would then use that knowledge in order to wake and enlighten people up especially those at the bottom of the hierarchies, these rulers would persecute these communities and the knowledge would be suppressed and destroyed. The reason is that if more people are waking up to the truth and the realities of existence, then these people would notice the nature of the control system for what they are, and these people would no longer trust the rulers, and would not easily fall under their jaws.

There is certain knowledge that they prefer us to be ignorant until the end, so that they think we would forever be bound. But on the other hand, many of these knowledge are becoming "accessible" again quite recently, to the point that the control system can no longer keep them hidden or destroy them (that would be too obvious), even that they are still very much suppressed. And the reason why these phenomena happen, I believe because we live in the so-called "gnostic times" as we are closing the chapter of the present Age and Epoch, the end of the Earth's current dimensional reality, and would go into the beginning of the next cycle through ascension process, which would include the events of purification and mass species extinction before the dimensional shift. During this period, revealed knowledge (Gnosis) would increase at the grassroots level, and many people are awakened to the new realizations as they are able to shed all the "manufactured realities" placed on them through dogma and propaganda by the control system. This is called the Great Awakening and it has already been starting since a few years ago with many people waking up, and everything here is spiritual by nature. It is by the work of the Spirit.

Q: Tell us a bit about the quote in the lyrics:

“recognize what is in your sight, and that which is hidden from you will become plain to you. for there is nothing hidden which will not become manifest.”

Jeff: That quote is taken from Gospel of Thomas, a written compilation of the sayings of Jesus that have hidden spiritual meanings, many of them also appear on the 4 conventional gospels which have become part of the New Testament. This writing (Gospel of Thomas) was thought to have a large circulation and quite popularly used in the early (pre-religion) original Christian communities in the first 3 centuries. It was then banned, excluded from the canon, and copies were destroyed by the authorities of the Roman empire when they took over the movement and made into official religion in the 4th Century CE. So this Gospel of Thomas never made it into the Roman empire's “curated compilation” or the canon we now know as the Holy Bible of Christian religion. Some copies were buried by certain underground Christian communities at the times of persecution of the “heretics” (those who didn't submit to Roman empire's “official version” of Christianity) so that the Romans would not discover and destroy it, and one was wholly recovered as part of the codices found in Nag Hammadi, Egypt in 1945. This particular saying resonates very strongly on me, because it is about being aware or mindful about what's going on in the world, just by seeing or observing the signs which are visible to us in plain sight, because no matter how subtle these signs might appear, they are actually recognizable, but only if we are mindful, only if we have a courage to honestly seek, only if we ask The Spirit for a wisdom to discern from all the information we get.

Gospel of Thomas is a very spiritual, esoteric writing that is excluded by the mainstream Christian religion post Roman empire's establishment (and until now, still being tagged as "heretical", "fake" and other negative things by the mainstream church organizations). But this writing has influenced so many spiritual communities outside Christian religion nowadays, because these sayings can act as some kind of "compass" to the gnosis.

Back to that quote, the quote also explains that no matter the control system or the evil rulers of this world want to hide the truth, the real history of the world and the knowledge about the universe from us the general public, and try to keep us in the state of ignorance and deep sleep, in the end, they will not succeed because truth will eventually manifest itself directly as gnosis to the seekers. You can really see it right now, everything is falling into place. Things are unfolding. The crimes against humanity done by the rulers at the governments, the royals, religious authorities, famous politicians and celebrities, bankers, lawyers, corporate CEOs, and so on, have come into surface and getting exposed.

Chapter 10: Apocalypse: Quantum Resolution

"have you discovered, then, the beginning, that you look for the end? for where the beginning is, there will the end be."

end of age is approaching, but have no fear

as this corrupt world has to pass through singularity upon the dawning of the new heaven and earth

when matter will be resolved back to its roots

mass extinction is inevitable during cosmic deconstruction better to break down than to keep corruption a status quo

as this realm is bound within the matrix of perceptual illusion

in the midst of inter-galactic war of the archons

see the spacetime collapsing, forms be met with dissolution entropy leads to the process of quantum resolution those who surrender to love, experience grand ascension through the spirit, souls shall receive complete purification passengers to this physical plane of existence soon we will say goodbye to our mortal fetters

through water that cleanses and fire that purges

our seeds shall become one with the light eternal lift the life out from the thick clouds of ignorance which will be done ahead of our wishful sight

be grateful in the spirit, as the time is arriving now saviour is coming without warning, like a thief in the night only love survives when atoms disintegrate only love remains in our consciousness embrace the extending waves of the god particle passing through heavens as the new earth is forming

Q: This particular song, appropriately called “Apocalypse: Quantum Resolution”, talks about mass extinction as part of the process of purification (deconstruction and reconstruction of the cosmic elements). How do you see the whole issue of Climate Change right now, and the possible mass extinction in apocalyptic proportions? You wrote the song "Sanity Away from Sanity" (from 2018 album “Deeper Underground”) to cover this issue, and although I don't see the familiar message of "hey, together let's save the Earth" on the lyrics, as they tend to deal more with the gloomy realities of possible human extinction. What's your opinion on the current movement, like the Extinction Rebellion and Greta Thunberg suddenly appeared on surface? and also the other end, like the climate change deniers?

Jeff: First of all, I believe we're in an abrupt climate change, right now as we speak, but I'd rather call it "Earth Changes" now because that would include everything like earthquakes, volcanic activities, and so on, not only limited to climate alone. I believe that the Earth is alive and conscious as well. It is a living entity, it is not dead. North American natives have always considered Earth as alive, so they put a huge respect to it by living harmoniously with nature. We call Earth as Mother because it nurtures life, and only what is alive can nurture life, just like a (living) mother breastfeed her child. I mean, how do you define "alive" or "dead"? We're all holograms, living in a simulated world. Our physical "reality" is made by atoms, and an atom is the smallest particle of matter made only by waveform of energetic vibrations from the same charged subatomic particles which can no longer be perceived. We even share the same molecular and atomic compositions as the Earth, like water, carbon, etc. To consider the Earth as dead and that we are somewhat "justified" to exploit it is plain absurd! It is beyond ignorance, because there's a sense of exceptionalism type of arrogance to it as a human species. The same way people justify themselves abusing animals or fellow humans because they perceive themselves as superior. Now on the question if humans can create climate change? Of course we can and we actually do. Because the Earth is alive, so when it gets abused terribly it will react as a response to the abuse. Just like when you cut down trees on the hill, during the rainstorm it will create disastrous landslides, the same thing you could get an infection from doing Brazilian wax. Well, it may not be a correct analogy, but just for getting to the point. Right now, with all the intensities of the rainstorms, extreme drought, forest fires, weird temperatures, melting of ice and glaciers, etc. we get the big picture about how they are part of the Earth's "response" to our abuse. The Earth is purifying herself right now, and it's for the greater good, because that way we can see ourselves in the mirror and ask ourselves whether we contribute positively or negatively to the Earth as our nurturer, our mother who gives us food and water and oxygen to breathe.

On the other hand, I personally think that we are in the very last moment in our time, so this whole thing will lead to the mass extinction of many species on Earth, including us the so-called Homo sapiens sapiens, just within the short-time period from now, possibly within this generation. Of course, this reality may freak some people out and they have the very right to be freaked-out, but the bottom line is that even though we are all going to become extinct within the next 10 to 50 years from now if not quicker, there's no need to be afraid. Just take it as a grace, because the Earth has been abused and has been ruled by evil forces for far too long. Our world on this Earth is already broken, and it is irreversible because our space-time property is linear (there are theories in Quantum Mechanics that suggest the possibility of multiple simulated worlds that share Earth as their “base”, but run at different range of frequency vibration or dimensions and so different space-time properties). There's already too much suffering by continuing to live in this status-quo. It has to be renewed in the sense of getting rid of the rotten elements that caused the destruction of our world to the point of inhabitable. Only the evil ones want to continue living here because it is their domain to continue ruling, their only playground, and they need us to feed-off our suffering and pain as their source of energy. They need us to exist in order for them to continue ruling over us. They need us to exist so that we continue to become their slaves. But I've got good news for you: according to my realizations, the Earth will get purified and rid herself from all the negative entities once it is done with this dimensional vibration and will proceed to the higher dimension with higher vibration. We're already in the process right now. It is called ascension. The mechanism, I'm not sure, but it could be with passing into the point of singularity while only the information that can be preserved for the higher dimension will survive and maintained. But because all of this physical reality is holographic and behaves pretty much like a hologram, it can be renewed just like you would restore your data from the infected hard-drive once you cleaned-up the virus. The world will somewhat restart as in upgraded version of the simulation.

Back to the topic, in my opinion, there are 2 "opposing" powers within the ruling class that react differently regarding this climate-change and coming mass extinction. First, there's a "freaked-out camp" who just realize their time is short, and if human species is going extinct, who will rule over mankind? That makes them realize, like "shit, we need to stay alive so that we can stay in power". That is also why there's already crazy talks about colonizing Mars, and also the transhumanism agenda of connecting organic human with the artificial-intelligence. How absurd is that? And what's all the point of creating artificial intelligence (AI) humanoids, if it's not because these evil rulers want to keep in control and they are losing their grip? And there's the other crazy camp who is already drunk with unlimited power and getting "high" from all the energy taken from human suffering, so that they're automatically in denial. So now you've got the "deniers" and the "freak-outers", both trying to influence people to their benefits. To be honest with you, I don't really want to jump into all that "Greta Thunberg hysteria" or the whole Extinction Rebellion thing targeting today's youth, nor the opposing, right-wing camp who refuse to believe in any change in Earth so that the exploitation to the Planet can go on forever. Everything is most likely manufactured, created from the top, from the ruling class. That's why there's no such same type of hysteria when countries in Middle East got bombed and millions of people die from endless wars and regime changes. But, however, we can see that as a kind of mirror, in order to see ourselves in it. This is a good time to reflect. Are we really on the highway to extinction? and if so, what can we do when we know we are going to face global catastrophe right in front of us? The lyrics of "Quantum Resolution" really talk and reflect on this. Humanity is beyond human species, and even beyond this holographic, simulated reality. That's the important point that people should be aware of.

Q: Does it sound a bit nihilistic or apathetic to just "accept" extinction? as you said that extinction is actually part of the process of humanity's evolution.

Jeff: I embrace human species extinction in an open heart. Not because I'm nihilistic, well it could be misinterpreted as "nihilistic" if you only believe that this physical reality, this realm of life, is the only life that exists. I don't believe in that. This human species does not define humanity. Our body is merely a fetter, or an illusionary avatar carrying consciousness or soul while within the simulation. That "Greta Thunberg hysteria", whoever shaped her in the first place in order to further "shape" or fool the minds of the general public by the support of mainstream mass media, smells too much of a sinister agenda for me, and sadly many people fall to that. Most likely in order to steer the youth away from being peaceful and caring/loving, and replace or add anger, angst, and even the madness of despair. You know because all of the sudden they have all the funding to promote that "message" and all the mainstream media jump together cover the "circus". Remember, and this is spiritual stuff: If people are full of peace and love in their hearts, the collective energy of that could challenge the evil energy from the devil and its emissaries. Archons feed-off/harvest human energy whether it's "pseudo positive" (ecstasy, euphoric hysteria, false worship/adoration) or negative ones (suffering, fear, anger, despair, etc.). Love and joy are of God the Father/Source, and humanity possesses that really really strong spark of Light energy. But this Light energy needs to be "activated" in order to "starve" the devil or negative archons. Right now, I observe that people are being stirred into emitting negative energy (whether from anger, fear, despair, etc.) through the mainstream media.

I would say that this Earth related message can still be "brought" one way or another, though some form of activism, but the best way to do that is to mobilize people to emit the positive energy of compassion and show love and respect to our Earth Mother as a conscious entity. Something I've seen missing in that regard if we keep barking "how dare you!". I mean those who exploit the Earth to the max won't be moved, and they can shout back "we don't care!". It has to be all about attracting like-minded people to respect our Earth Mother, our life-giving planet (some call by the name "Gaia"), and to respect life in general. If we treat life with love and respect, there would be no exploitation. We can't focus our entire energy just to confront those who do evil with the hope that they may change course, most likely they won't, but we can change the energy of those who suffer (as we are one of them) from negativity into positivity. Accepting that we are in pain, and that we will never give up loving and caring even if we continue to suffer. That would affect the collective energy, not in order to reverse what's already broken, but to practice the acts of respect to our Mother, our nurturer. The Earth will undergo abrupt changes as it is ascending into the new dimension, and that change will include the human species as well.

Q: So, an extinction of our human species is not the same as an extinction of humanity. We can't confuse between the two.

Jeff: Exactly. This is the most important point, to make a huge distinction between human species and humanity. Human species is holographic or illusory in nature, while humanity is not. Human species is an avatar or vehicle for human soul/consciousness in order to learn humanity within this world of simulation. That being said, for our world right now, an extinction of the current human species is needed as part of the purification process, in order for the world to be "replenished" (think of this as an entire OS/operating system upgrade that would include the quarantine of all the viruses infecting the current system), and for humanity to move on and evolve naturally without any parasitic disruptive elements. The notion of "a shepherd separating the sheep and goats" during the end of the world is also about this, because that way, the so-called "human souls" (all souls that currently reside in their bodily avatar of human species) will be separated according to their essence, or what they've become when the time is up. The period of purification is the process of that separation and it is happening now. Right now we are already at the stage of global purification, and soon we will witness the removal of the dark entities and all the evils that reside within the ruling elite. A new human species with upgraded DNA to perceive the new Earth within higher dimensional realities will appear after the Event of the so-called Singularity, some say upon passing into the photonic belt. So the extinction of the current human species will be followed in parallel by the dawning of the new, upgraded human species. Then the old Earth will be retired for good. Actually, certain souls, called “the elect”, will not need to leave their body (going through the “death” process), and they will be transformed directly by receiving new DNA activation and upgrades in order to perceive the new realities of Earth in the higher dimension. They are chosen to prepare the new Earth by either building the new infrastructures and also to later accepting new souls that will be incarnated there as their children. Remember, everything we perceive as form is only a holographic illusion. So we can imagine as we would see the upgraded avatar in the video game with new set of capabilities to continue on the next stage of the game.

On the other hand, the idea of an extinction of humanity is "satanic" in nature, because the goal of the evil one and its minions is to kill or delete the humanity from human species and turn it to just a "power plant" for them to suck the energy from (to become a battery as portrayed in The Matrix movie), while connecting human mind to be fully hack-able and controlled by artificial intelligence. Basically to turn humans into energy slaves, or power slaves. The very idea of transhumanism itself aims toward this goal. That's the reason they really hate human consciousness and for many thousands of years have waged war against it. They hate to see our consciousness grow and shift from ignorance toward goodness, humanity, and toward The Father.

So, that's why when we observe the current state of the world, it seems that those in power want to keep human species to continue so that they can continue to rule, basically extending their status quo. That's because they (those in power) know that the time is very short, and that human species is going to become extinct pretty soon. They are afraid of losing their avatars (host bodies) to rule and also at the same time losing their slaves. And also there's even more sinister idea of reducing the human population to a "sustainable level" like what, 500 millions? Of course, this idea also carries the same satanic goal so that these rulers, those at the top of the pyramid can continue to rule over people as long as they want.

Q: Can you explain more about humanity's evolution past the extinction, and why is it necessary for our human species, the current one called Homo sapiens sapiens, to be "restructured" (or "resolved") into the newly evolved one?

Jeff: Evolution is a natural part of progress in this simulation, but our species was "created" (or for lack of better term; "modelled" or "fashioned") many thousands of years ago as a kind of archon-level intervention; an accelerated non-natural planting and fashioning of new species through genetic engineering. Yes, our species can be considered as GMO, genetically modified species, but I won't explain much about that right now. The evil one or the trickster (Enki/Ea from the Sumerian & Akkadian-Babylonian mythology, later also called Prometheus, and Lucifer in other myths), had idea in mind in order to exploit and make us work for them as slaves (called "lulu amelu" in the Sumerian tablet, meaning "primitive worker") in building the civilization & empire here on Earth, as we possess intelligent/cognitive capabilities that are higher than proto-human great ape species originated from Earth. That was needed for physically building the advanced civilizations that would benefit them in the first place, before they themselves later on "merged down" with our species (another set of intervention), so that they could physically rule over us on Earth as gods through their bloodline. On the other hand, only about 8.2% of our species' DNA that are currently active or functioning, so they must have put the limit of our potential.

Now, as we are entering the next chapter of the evolutionary period for Earth, everything will be resolved, and humanity will get its chance to "reenter" the new Earth (the same one, although our world on this Earth will exist in a higher vibration and thus shifting to a higher dimension). This explanation seems otherworldly, but once again as I explained earlier, everything here is holographic in nature and we're living in a simulation, so data can be preserved while at the same time the basic elements are resolved into the new particles. A version upgrade of the simulation. This is where the evil and all the dark souls residing in certain human bodies, and the archons associated with that will get banished, sent to the prison-planet far away from our galaxy, and prevented from accessing this whole new, higher dimensional simulated world on Earth. They'll get stuck in the third dimension of dense matter, and only those who embrace the Light and practice unconditional love (embody the Christ within) are able to "ascend" to the higher vibrational plane of existence, and eventually, to ascend (in a proper term) toward The Father/Source, and to become one with the pure Eternal Light outside the whole corruptible system of duality. It is necessary for many of these souls currently on Earth to continue to learn humanity through this next step of the evolutionary process, so that they will be given a chance to either voluntarily reincarnate or resurrect into the upgraded type of human species (a more advanced/updated version, shall

I say, with entirely active DNA) where things will function differently: in a much much more spiritual in nature. I believe that the consciousness will stay, they will not forget what they have learned in the lower dimensions, maybe even down to the physical likenesses and the talents (DNA data that are good could be preserved and the bad ones are wiped away), so that they will remember their past life and build the next experience from what was left-off. Actually the Book of Revelation (chapter 20) in New Testament explains this in brief, although we may need to read it spiritually as well to understand it from the perspective of Quantum Mechanics about the holographic nature of this universe, to really "get" how that "mechanism" would work.

We can also read a number of stories from near-death experiencers, some were given the snapshots about the Earth's future after the renewal, and to my surprise, they were shown that people will live harmoniously and in peace both within themselves as well as with the nature and their habitat, and most communications will be telepathic. They are able to astral travel at will.

[Additional discussions added below, taken from June 2020 Q&As, updated in March 2022]

Q: 2020 seems to be a hell of a year so far, and here we are only halfway through it. I agree what you previously said about the Earth changes and the end of the Age, and how everything may render a direct effect on the whole "social fabric". But specifically, do you have any opinion regarding the recent protests against racism, police brutality, etc. that happen almost everywhere in some western countries, right at the same time?

Jeff: What I observe and learn from my own personal research, the issues of racism and law-enforcement brutality especially in the USA have existed since the very beginning, since its foundation, because the U.S. is the nation-empire which bears the characteristics or traits of a typical empire. These two are only a few of so many other overlooked, unrecognized, and normalized symptoms of the same disease. But the symptoms are not the disease itself. In this case, the disease is much deeper and much more sinister and evil than what most people realize. As one may follow down the "rabbit hole" (borrowing the term from "The Matrix") from examining the roots of these symptoms in order to find the core of the disease, one also may find out that everything leads to something spiritual and of "non-human" origin dating back many thousands of years ago when the entire system of "advanced civilizations" appeared so sudden (called Neolithic Revolution, as I already explained about in earlier discussion), where slavery, monetary/financial system of debt, establishment of monarchy, political structures, military, wars, etc. became apparent and used to feed the "physical development" of such civilization. It is the base or foundation of the whole system we live in, part of the "structural design" in order for this type of "civilization" to sustain itself and then transforming to become an "empire" through conquest and expansion by stealing other lands and resources, of course at the expense of all the sacred lives of Earth Mother and her inhabitants. This means certain elements in the society, mostly those at the "bottom of the pyramid", are "sacrificed" so that the system can grow or develop. The sickness lies in the foundation and is embedded in the psyche of the nation or empire as it spreads to the entire elements of society.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., which many of us recognize in his "I have a dream" speech, also later on came up with the less-popular term, "Triple Evils", in identifying the sickness within the society that is tied in the system itself. These are Racism, Militarism (leading to violence, wars, war-crimes & genocides), and Economic Exploitation (the unhinged system of hyper-Capitalism, utilization of wage and debt slavery, the rape of Earth to extract natural resources, all leading to extreme poverty and deaths). According to Dr. King, these triple evils are interconnected and can't be fought separately on its own. They are visible within all dominating empires of the world from many thousands of years ago.

You may expect me to explain some conspiracy theories behind these protests. Of course, it is very much possible, because the mainstream media all jumped on the issue right away, just based on one trigger (George Floyd's death on camera), when in reality there are many similar cases have been committed almost every day. It might be possible that it was originally a kind of "set-up" to provoke racial tension (basically to create civil war), because the current empire is dying of its own evil disease so they are getting more and more ridiculously evil just to maintain its losing hegemony. That's why almost immediately there were "agent provocateurs" tried to incite riots and chaotic situation, but it didn't happen the way the "top-level players" wanted I guess, and instead lots of people continue to protest and these protests were heading to the "undesired territory" from the perspective of those at the top, because it seems more people have started to question and take issues about colonial and imperial past of the so-called "western" nations, not only stop in a mere "racial" issue. I see many young people begin to obtain knowledge for themselves, instead of becoming the "fighting pawns" of the ruling elite. When a society is fighting racism, it is beneficial only to all the individuals who sincerely fight it, because that would make them to reflect upon themselves and correct the moral course in seeing and treating fellow humans, and that is definitely good for their consciousness to grow in a positive way (bear in mind: many doing it just for opportunity, like the celebs and some politicians, to carry the agendas of the ruling elite). Same thing with those who oppose police brutality, violence and oppression. Upon reflection, those who fight it may realize that violence and oppression will not serve any society, other than the ones who benefit from it (namely, those at the "top of the hierarchy": the oligarchs, the ruling elite), so they may embody the opposite traits upon themselves and become better persons within society as they themselves will oppose the use of violence and brute force to oppress others. The benefit is for human consciousness, and I believe that The Father has the plan for that, to win over and bring as many souls as possible into the Light. For many, this event is the soul's preparation for what's coming ahead, namely the Purification time that will kick-off as the current Age is ending.

As for the system itself, hope people will realize that it can never be fixed by fighting the symptoms separately, as it has never been "fixed" since the advent of civilization a long time ago. All empires are doomed to collapse as they can never sustain themselves that way, I mean using the same exploitative system it was built upon. We are currently witnessing the collapse of the final empire on Earth. They have lost their power to conceal their evil deeds and can no longer be able to manipulate and exploit the masses as they wish, because many people all over the world are waking up to the truth and thus bringing the light in the collective consciousness.

Q: Now what about the pandemic?

Jeff: I did some research on my own not long after the news came up last February, not just accepting false narratives from the so-called "mainstream media", and I found there are many inconsistencies and half-baked theories regarding when the virus first spread, and where, and also whether its origin was "natural" or "by design". One thing that's certain, is that there was a simulation of the pandemic held in New York, called "Event 201". That was in October 2019, before the news broke out even in Wuhan. Also many people have had unanswered questions regarding what actually happened at Fort Detrick bio-lab in Maryland, USA back in July 2019 when it was shut-down, and then soon after, leading to the multiple reported deaths from lung disease around the area, in which the authorities blamed vaping as the cause. There are so much truths that are suppressed, the sinister agendas that are run behind closed doors, leading to so many conspiracy theories came up (which, of course, some could be fabricated as "decoys" by the same players at the top), but there are many shocking evidences that the virus itself is a bio-weapon. The COVID is a smoke-screen, planned as means to establish control to the whole masses, The virus itself is not a hoax, it does exist. Some strains are more deadly than the others and some countries "received" more than the others, but the virus didn't originate naturally as a result of people eating bats or other wild animals over there in China. Actually it's a deliberate, but controlled, bio-lab modified SARS virus and the product of various labs around the world. This COVID thing is a double-edged sword, the evil idea from the ruling elite (very well connected to "The Great Reset" agenda by World Economic Forum in Davos) was to establish more control to public, like through the surveillance and what I call it as "movement trackers", also to kill small businesses and cash-based economy, and then to push fear into the public so that in the end people will accept vaccination. It's all about complete domination. The "new world order" they have always said. There are many new evidences that came up recently regarding the vaccine, especially the capabilities of altering people's DNAs through the graphene-oxide nanoparticles. And with those over-the-top ridiculous campaigns throughout the whole mainstream media and social media, enrollment of the vaccine passports, vaccine mandates, plus extreme censorship that happen at the same time when people even start to question this narrative or ask the effectiveness of the vaccine for example, many more people start to wonder if what they were told by the media and governmental officials (to really fear the virus and the "pandemic", and to accept the continuous shots as the ultimate "way-out") was actually a deliberate evil global agenda. Everything has become too obvious now. People are not that stupid. Many people have been awakened just because of this event alone. And in the past few months, there are reports that more and more numbers of people have died because of the shots, with reports ranging from extreme blood clots to myocarditis, strokes, and heart attacks. Hundreds of doctors have now spoken up to oppose these shots, even though they would risk having their license revoked. We've seen so many individuals collapsing on live TV, from athletes, to news anchors, to performers. This is a global conspiracy, and this whole sinister agenda has begun to get exposed even though corporate mainstream media still try to suppress all the information coming out. I'm not surprised if very soon everything regarding this agenda will be exposed to the general public, and then followed with mass arrests. This is part of a spiritual warfare, but the Light has won in the cosmic realms, it's just a matter of time that we will witness the complete collapse of evil in this world.

Chapter 11: Pneumatic Union

*father, mother, i am yours the key has been found, it is love to experience and share love is the only purpose of life in this holographic existence nothing else matters in physical reality our body is merely a fetter; an illusionary avatar preset by the biological software called dna but we are driven by the divine energy:
our consciousness, purely eternal
...and i am now ready to return to my true home:
and joining the light where i came from*

Q: Can you explain about the lyrical line “the key has been found, it is love”? Is love the ultimate?

Jeff: After realizing that we live in a simulation, where everything that is seen and perceived, including our body, is merely a holographic illusion, we can't help but figure out whether this sort of "reality" has any meaning at all. But as we seek further, it turns out there is a great meaning, because our consciousness/soul can go further beyond the grave as our consciousness doesn't really die, so we can extract the essence from all our experiences here, the essence that we can attach to our consciousness after we leave the body. The essence that transforms our soul into light. That very essence is unconditional love, so yes it is the ultimate. It is the character of The Source/The Father.

Our only goal is to love unconditionally (true love is always unconditional, because putting a condition on love would take away the "true" part of it) and to avoid the rat race. As written in the lyrics; "nothing else matters in physical reality", there's really no point in participating in the rat race like going after jobs that offer high incomes, or the need of getting millions of followers and likes on Instagram or Facebook based on exhibiting physicality or body that goes rot as soon as the blood stops running, or anything related to material achievements and possessions. Furthermore upon we realizing that all of these civilizations and empires and their entire exploitative systems are of the "fallen watchers/angels" origin that's alien (pun intended) to Earth's original native inhabitants, there's no point in pursuing the image and vanity and all sorts of material "excellence" because we weren't naturally exist to demonstrate such affairs in the first place. In the end, they don't matter. They can only distract us from pursuing the excellence for the soul or the essence of the consciousness, which is to embody love and to share love around us. We can use all we have, all the talents and skills and our material gains, for this purpose towards the good. The fullness of life we should be looking for isn't material at all because matter is illusory (as we found out), but it is spiritual. So, love is the momentum which can be applied on all our experiences while in this simulation, especially because of the evil in this world that leads to all sorts of suffering, ugliness and destruction, love itself works as an agent of transformation.

Q: How about this “biological software” called DNA? Do you think we can alter it somehow, or how can we resist the tendencies that are imprinted within the DNA, like for example excessive sexual drives, hormonal aggressiveness or other tendencies towards violence, in relation to obtaining the higher aim which is to love unconditionally? Most of the time the DNA could work against that aim.

Jeff: I watched a documentary a while ago, which had an interview with Dr. Gabor Maté. On that particular interview, as explained by Dr. Maté, I just realized that a person’s DNA data can be “modified” by the environment, in the sense that the DNA data isn’t always hereditary in nature and a “hard-imprint”, but also can be somewhat re-written during the course of one’s life, and then becomes hereditary (to be passed-on to the descendants). One good example, is that stress, lifestyle and dietary choice, if not managed properly, can make a person get various illnesses and hormonal imbalances, including cancer. Then from there, the person’s DNA will have the corresponding sickness embedded in the data, which then can be passed on genetically through the sperm or egg.

Now, when seeing DNA as a “software” within our bodily avatar in this simulated world, we can see this pretty much as a software update that will determine the overall performance of the computer. To answer the above question, I would say yes we can somewhat “alter” or “update” our DNA data, not through the lab-based genetic modification, not even though drugs or hormonal injections, but through our own conscious energy as well as our dietary and lifestyle choice. There is no excuse for being bad by just claiming in having a “bad gene”, something like “my dad is a serial cheater, so I have natural tendencies toward cheating”. We are all affected by our own DNA which may create these biologically-driven tendencies, but at the same time we’re capable of embodying positive energy (just as simple as being grateful and peaceful to self everyday), and we can consciously choose to have a good diet and healthy lifestyle, and be away from any unnecessary stressful environment or circumstances that create fear and envy. All of these can alter the data in our DNA over time.

Q: About “pneumatic union”, a quick search on the web gives us the meaning of “pneuma” as spirit. So what does it mean with “spiritual union”? Does it refer to the “lower self” (soul ## consciousness) being finally united with its “higher self” (spirit consciousness)?

Jeff: Pneumatic union is the union of the soul and spirit, or yes as you mentioned, between the “lower-self” and its “higher-self”. This is the essence of salvation, which is not only to escape from the bondage of The Matrix, but also to rejoin The Light. Right now, most people don’t recognize the difference between soul and spirit, just because the knowledge of this has been intentionally “obscured” (hidden by the rulers, the control system). The soul is basically our consciousness that currently “resides” within this holographic universe (the Sophianic system, the corruptible system of duality which has roots of positive and negative energy interactions). There’s the whole cosmology regarding the fall of Sophia or Logos in which “lower-self” came to exist “separated” from its core or centrepoint that is within the Realm of Light and the Unity with The Father. This cosmology is a bit complicated to explain, and I don’t think one can claim to have a full knowledge about this process of separation of consciousness. One thing I can explain here is that when we talk about consciousness that takes place within this whole holographic system, whether in this simulated world (within the incarnated body/avatar) or in its other “form” that may manifest outside of the simulated world but still within the corruptible system, depending on which dimension/heaven or realm it resides, this “conscious energy” is called soul or some may refer to the “lower-self” known with its separateness or isolatedness, and it is the “image” of the true self. The “lower-self” is what we normally call it as soul, a.k.a. the consciousness that carries the memories from the individual experiences while living in the simulation(s), and at the same time this is the “type” of consciousness that may get reincarnated into another body/avatar to obtain some more experiences. Some people refer this to “memory consciousness” because it is the part that’s attached to the experiences, and in the case of our world that has fallen into the hands of the evil one, gets sick and corrupted with the “virus” in which it has to seek help or assistance to get healed and out of the bondage.

And then there’s the so-called “higher-self”, which refers to the real-self (as opposed to the “image”), the primordial consciousness that has always been connected in Oneness, outside of this holographic universe. Without uniting to the “higher-self”, the “lower-self” in itself will perish because it is just a mere “image” of its real self, so in this case it has to be united again with its “higher-self” so that the consciousness will exist eternally within the union/communion of the Light. In the Valentinian terminology, this unification process is called “The Bridal Chamber”, and it is an important process of salvation because this is the process of restoration to the essence of humanity as the children of The Father, to become united in and as Light. The Grand Unification or Holy Marriage so to speak. The bonding of our (currently “separated” and “isolated”) individual souls together to form the spiritual essence. We can think this process as the branches of the tree that once separated and fallen but get reattached to the tree (and thus become one with the tree once again). There are parables in the New Testament that illustrate this process, like the return of the prodigal son into his home and his father, as well as the ten virgins. The parable of the ten virgins also has other revealing substance, because of the number of wise virgins (which is 5 of 10 total) that are able to enter the wedding after meeting the bridegroom because they had prepared to keep their lamps on (while the other 5 doesn't make it at the end, due to their lack of oil in their lamps). This parable specifically mentions the state of plurality (not just one virgin) and the corresponding isolatedness of each individual, and also explains the concept of unification between the separated individual lower-souls, but not until they meet the bridegroom which enables them to enter the place of the wedding, in the sense they can't do the unification themselves without the bridegroom.

Chapter 12:

Quotes & References

- “Hence the saying: If you know the enemy and know yourself, you need not fear the result of a hundred battles. If you know yourself but not the enemy, for every victory you gained you will also suffer a defeat. If you know neither the enemy nor yourself, you will succumb in every battle.” —The Art of War by Sun Tzu (Chapter 3 Verse 18)
- “We can easily forgive a child who is afraid of the dark; the real tragedy of life is when men are afraid of the light.” –Plato
- The Allegory of the Cave - from Plato's writing, "Republic" [YouTube video Link]
- “The sole purpose of life is spiritual growth, and that, put simply, is the process of learning the wisdom and power of universal, unconditional love. All of the dogma of various religions just get in the way by infusing a judgmental and egotistical brand of separatism that satisfies man's archaic and barbaric disposition. In the end, the only things that matter is the people we help and the people we hurt. This revelation is not fully understood until we return to the Plains and examine it under the light of absolute truth.” —Ron Kruger (NDEer/near-death experiencer, from his published book called "A Higher Good")

- Thought snippet on Propaganda [Instagram Image]
- Holographic Universe: How space-time is built by Quantum Entanglement [science article at phys.org, 2015]
- “The Matrix is a system, Neo. That system is our enemy. But when you're inside, you look around, what do you see? Businessmen, teachers, lawyers, carpenters. The very minds of the people we are trying to save. But until we do, these people are still a part of that system and that makes them our enemy. You have to understand, most of these people are not ready to be unplugged. And many of them are so inert, so hopelessly dependent on the system that they will fight to protect it.” —Morpheus (character from movie "The Matrix", 1999)
- “The general population doesn't know what's happening, and it doesn't even know that it doesn't know” —Prof. Dr. Noam Chomsky
- Holographic Universe - introductory explanation [YouTube video Link]
- Understanding A Holographic Principle in Quantum Mechanics [YouTube video Link]

- Quantum Mechanics 101: Double Slit Experiment, Quantum Entanglement, Many Worlds Theory, etc. [YouTube video Link]
- “When the Demiurge, the god of those who know not the true God, further wanted to imitate also the boundless, eternal, infinite and timeless nature of the original eight Aeons of the fullness, but could not express their immutable eternity, being as he was a fruit of the defect, he embodied their eternity in times, epochs and great numbers of years, under the delusion that by the quantity of times he could represent their infinity. Thus truth escaped him and he followed a lie. Therefore his work shall pass away when the times are fulfilled.” — Valentinus (circa 100 - 160 CE)
- Jesus said, “Recognize what is in your sight, and that which is hidden from you will become plain to you. For there is nothing hidden which will not become manifest.” —Gospel of Thomas (banned from the official canon, and was thought to be completely destroyed by the Roman authority in the 4th/5th Century CE, until a copy and another fragments of it discovered in year 1945 in Nag Hammadi, Egypt)
- “The Savior said: All nature, all formations, all creatures exist in and with one another, and they will be resolved again into their own roots. For the nature of matter is resolved into the roots of its own nature alone.” —excerpt from Gospel of Mary (banned from the official canon, and was thought to be completely destroyed by the Roman authority in the 4th/5th Century CE, until fragments of it discovered in the 19th Century)

- "The rulers wanted to fool people, since they saw that people have a kinship with what is truly good. They took the names of the good and assigned them to what is not good, to fool people with names and link the names to what is not good. So, as if they were doing people a favor, they took names from what is not good and transferred them to the good, in their own way of thinking. For they wished to take free people and enslave them forever." —excerpt from Gospel of Philip (probably a Valentinian writing originated from the 2nd to 3rd Century CE, and was thought to be completely destroyed by the Roman authority in the 4th/5th Century CE, until a copy of it discovered in year 1945 in Nag Hammadi, Egypt)