

All You Need to Know About Nursing Courses in UK

The Fundamentals of Nursing Courses in UK

The United Kingdom is regarded as the forerunner of contemporary nursing and has consistently worked to enhance the subject. As a result, it's no wonder that hundreds of students from all over the world want to study nursing in Florence Nightingale's homeland. Nursing courses are available at all levels at over a hundred institutions in the United Kingdom. Undergraduate, postgraduate, full-time, part-time, career progression, and certification courses are just a few of the options available.

Nursing degrees in the United Kingdom are often expensive; however, private foundations, government funds, and the university delivering the nursing degree grant academic and need-based scholarships to both native and international students.

General Requirements:

While each university has a different eligibility criterion for admission, there are some basic requirements, which every student needs to complete in order to get enrolled in a nursing course in the UK. Furthermore, the eligibility criteria can differ depending on the academic level the course falls on. Nonetheless, here are the basics:

- Grades (minimum): ABB in A Level, 30 points in International Baccalaureate or equivalent
- Overall IELTS score (minimum): 6.5

Best Universities for Nursing:

Out of the innumerable institutions offering nursing courses in UK, some universities stand out due to the sterling quality of education they provide. However, getting admitted to one of the universities listed below is not easy. Check out the list of top ten universities according to the Guardian University Guide 2019 for nursing and midwifery:

1. University of Edinburgh
2. Swansea University
3. University of Glasgow
4. Queen Margaret University
5. University of Liverpool
6. University of Essex
7. Coventry University
8. University of Huddersfield
9. Liverpool John Moores University
10. Keele University

For more information regarding nursing courses in UK, get in touch with us via email or give us a call back.